

IN SOCIETY

Numerous game parties, the band dance, and card parties include about all that marked the present week in a social way, and though there was a wedding or two, it cannot be said that Cupid has gotten well under way as yet this week. Next week, commencement affairs will usurp nearly everything and that is as it should be for one week of the year is always set aside to the girl graduates of the high school and though several functions are now planned in the way of class receptions and the like, it will be a week of the strenuous sort in an academic way to the large class that will be graduated from the local high school.

A special meeting of the literary department of the Neighborhood club is called for Monday, May 23, at 2:30 o'clock. All wishing to join this department are requested to be present at that hour.

- Club and Peanut Sandwiches Olives

Progressive games were played and the evening enjoyed in a very informal but pleasant way. Miss Rachel Turner and Mr. Johnson won prizes at the games played. Delicious refreshments were served. The guests present were: Messrs. Gullekson, Tanner, Corpe, Dayson, Ingle, Vheers, Barron, Frank Halston, Arthur Huff, Misses Della Rayburn, Rachel Turner, Evangelina, June and Bess Hume, Nell Mahoney, Ruby Huff, Zepha Kennedy, Mabel Van Fleet and Jennie Gavin.

H. P. Lewis Takes His Callers Unaware.

Last night when a party of young folks visited the home of H. P. Lewis and wife at 402 Third street thinking that bride and groom were housed there, Mr. Lewis appeared on the front porch demanding that everyone of the youngsters enter the house. One boy said he was the captain and he led the way. The girls in the party reluctantly entered the home and when once in Mr. Lewis locked the door and demanded an explanation. He claimed that he had been married four years and it was highly improper that he should be charivared so often. Several of the party wanted to leave but he refused to let them. When candy and oranges were served he demanded that each one eat, although timidity among the girls again asserted itself. Today Mr. Lewis said he had thought of appealing to the law for disturbance of the peace, but he remembered that he was once young himself and changed his mind.
