Horse Falls Into Well.

An old horse, a pitiable picture of advanced age, and equine despair, fell into the dry and unused well in the rear of the Enterprise Press office last Friday night. The animal was discovered in the morning. According to the looks of the horse and the examinations of his teeth by local authorities he must have passed some twenty blistering summers and some twenty rigorous winters. Marshal Hug was communicated with, and he responded at once, bringing aid. He dug the animal from the well, and later men arrived with a derrick, getting the old fellow on his feet, when he walked off. No owner has yet been found.
