MILLION BUSHEL CROP AGAIN

EVERY INDICATION POINTS TO A RECORD WHEAT CROP THIS SUMMER.

EARLY STAND NEVER BETTER

Sandridge County a Picture of Fertility and Wealth—Though Crops Late in Some Instances, Stand is Even Better Than Last Year When Records Were Smashed—All Small Grains Show Even Stands.

Signs point to a second successive bumper small grains crops in Grande Ronde valley this year. That last year's record crop of a million bushels will be duplicated by wheat growers for the second successive time can now be predicted with considerable certainty for unless unforeseen disaster occurs, the early stand will surely yield even more, or at least as much, as last season, when all records for crops were broken.

Acreage Diminishing.
A remarkable feature which goes hand in hand with the promise of a million-bushel wheat crop, is the fact that the acreage is diminishing with great rapidity every year—wheat fields are being converted into orchards. Notwithstanding that this is a fact, the total crop remains the same, or even more. This is manifestly due to the increasing fertility of the soil and satisfactory climatic conditions in recent years. Seldom in the past decade has the prospects been as indicative of bumper and records crops as right now.
The Sandridge country is a picture of perfect crops. Spring grains of all varieties are standing far more encouragingly than usual and winter grains are likewise of a stand that will spell record crops. T. M. Ruckman of Imbler, stated today that in his long career as small grains grower, he has seldom if ever seen more satisfactory indications at this time of the year, than right now. The same is true of all wheat and small grain growing sections. In many instances the crop is later than customary but more even and prolific.

Not only will La Grande aster growers be given a chance to compete for the prizes, but the surrounding territory will be eligible as well. The best yard display will also be on the board of enviable prizes and growers should bear this in mind as well. However, it has been agreed that the matter of plumbing will not be let at this time but will be taken up as soon as the contract for the building proper has been let.

DECLARE WAR ON FLY EVIL

COUNCIL TRANSACTS LARGE ACCOUNT OF BUSINESS.

Various Sanitary Problems Taken Up and Discussed at Length.

To inaugurate a strenuous war on open garbage cans in back yards, to secure strict enforcement of the auto speed limit law, and to take action on various sanitary and other important measures are only some of the transactions coming before the city council last evening.

The matter of selling the idle electric pumping plant of the city was brought up. Sale will be possible next fall according to the best information obtainable.

While there was no new developments in the matter of crematory or dumping grounds for garbage, the question consumed considerable time. "It is a serious matter," said the mayor to the councilmen. "It is so serious that every day I am confronted with the problem, when people ask me where they can dump garbage. The matter must be adjusted at once."

The committee appointed to look into the matter suggested that the extreme north end of Fourth street be used, but this would likely infringe on the statute provisions as it is unlawful to dump garbage in any stream. The park association would undoubtedly object strenuously to such a proceeding, too, as the dump would be but a short distance above the park. Inhabitants along the river bank would have a legitimate complaint coming, too. Something will have to be done and that promptly, according to general opinion.

A petition was read, for a four-inch water main on O avenue to connect two dead ends, one at Fifth and one at Seventh street. The matter was referred to proper committees.

A theatre permit was asked for by the Airdome concern through Thomas Bruce. Same was granted.

As announced in the Observer a few days ago, the residents of Sixth street petitioned for a reconsideration of the council's proceedings, and have bitulithic pavement put on that street from Washington to K street instead of macadam as previously decided upon. As a great majority of the property owners signed the petition, there seems to be no stumbling block to their prayers.

Street Superintendent Matoot recommended a new ordinance regulating the laying of sidewalks and curbing. This was referred.

The city engineer reported that the excavation on Adams avenue for Macadam on the east end had been completed, and that a subgrade had been established for one block which was originally intended for Macadam but

WOOL GROWERS TO BE FAVORED

O. R. & N. ALLOWS PRIVILEGE THAT WAS BONE OF LONG LITIGATION.

NO NEED TO BALE WOOL

Oregon and Washington to Have Privileges That Formerly Belonged to People Living on O. S. L. and Northern Pacific—Will Give Eastern Buyers a Chance to Bid on Oregon Wool Clips.

Portland, June 2.—Announcement that the Oregon Railroad & Navigation company will permit shipment of wool in sacks without baling after July 8 from all points on its lines in Oregon, Washington and Idaho, is considered here as a partial victory for the Oregon Wool Growers' association.

According to the new tariff, un-baled shipments are allowed to go to the Atlantic seaboard. For months the association has been fighting for this clause. Through the Oregon Railroad Commission complaint was made to the interstate commerce commission attacking the baling regulation on east bound freights. The case is now pending.

For years the shippers on the O. S. L. and Northern Pacific lines enjoyed the un-baled wool rate and it is expected that eastern buyers who refused to buy Oregon wool will now become bidders as it removes the expense of baling.

While wool is not a very extensive product of Union county, there is nevertheless sufficient clips in this valley to warrant considerable elation at the victory of the Wool Growers' association. The sheep industry is rapidly growing, and it is pleasing to those who are already in the business, to know that the objectionable features of former provisions have been removed.

FOUR BRIDGES PURCHASED

LARGE TERRITORY TO BE GIVEN NEW STRUCTURES.

Court Hopes to Adjourn This Evening With Two Days' Work.

Four steel bridges, the longest 100 feet, were purchased yesterday afternoon by the county and commissioners, and as many bridges will be installed as soon as possible in various parts of the county. One of the bridges will be installed across the river at the Red bridge near Cove, one is going up north of Elgin, one across Big Ditch and another near Allice.

The court expects to adjourn this evening as the policy of the court is to clean up all the work in two days if possible. Nothing of great importance came up for consideration at this term.
