

ELECTRICITY
FOR EVERY HOME IN LA GRANDE

The cost for wiring, lamps and current is exceedingly small compared with the convenience, comfort and safety obtained by its use.

Your home can be wired complete at an average cost of only $2.00 per room. Lamps, fixtures, radiators, cooking utensils and numerous other electrical appliances may be obtained at surprisingly low cost.

Ask your neighbor who he uses electric light; he certainly has some reason for doing so, and then call at our office or let our representative call at your house and explain to you why you should have your home wired and use electricity.

JOHN DAY TAPPED.
First Passenger Train Enters John Day Valley From Baker Today.

Baker City, June 13.—Special—John Day is connected with the outside valley by a ribbon of steel, and the first passenger train to go to John Day valley with terminus at Prairie City, left Baker City this morning at 8:30 o'clock.

Two trains will be maintained on the line for a short time until the schedule can be arranged so that the trains can leave Baker in the morning and go to Prairie City and back in the same day. At present the two trains will meet at Ausetin at noon, and the passengers given time for dinner.

The completion of the line has marked the end of several months of patient labor by the company. The road was started last summer and before the severe winter set in had been completed to the summit of Dixie mountain and trains were being run that far. Work was suspended during the winter and this spring was taken up again and the line rushed through. The extension is about 21 miles long and the fare from Baker to Prairie will be about $3.50 or $4. The cost of the extension is not definitely known, but the officials estimated the expense at $350,000. A bonus of about $40,000 was raised by the people interested in the line, the merchants of Baker pledging $10,000 toward the expense.

THE LIGHT OF PLANETS.

Influence of Phase and Rotation Upon Their Brightness.

The total luminosity of the moon varies according to the proportion of its illuminated hemisphere which is turned toward the earth, that is to say, in accordance with the "phase" of the satellite. Mercury and Venus show similar but smaller differences of phase and brightness. The exterior planets vary in phase so little that the variation in their brightness is barely perceptible. The brightness of planets can be measured by the astrophotometer, and the dependence of the brightness upon the phase can be expressed by a curve.

As it seemed possible that some information in regard to the surface of the planets could be obtained from the study of such curves, Von Aufsess has made a series of experiments to determine the relation between brightness and phase in the case of illuminated masses of limestone, sandstone, granite and other materials of spherical and other forms. The measurements of brightness were made in a completely dark room. The artificial plant was illuminated by a Nernst lamp, not directly, but by reflection from a plane sheet of glass, through which the object could be observed in the "full" phase. The lamp and the reflector were mounted on an arm which could be turned around the object in order to vary the phase.

When the results were plotted the curves representing the brightness as a function of the phase were found to fall into two classes, according to the character of the material to which the globes were composed. Globes of light colored material gave curves concave below, while the curves produced by globes of darker material are concave above. Small elevations and depressions, glossy surfaces, etc., were found to produce comparatively little effect upon the curves, the character of which was in general decided almost entirely by the lightness or darkness of the surface. The curves produced by Venus and the moon are concave above; hence it appears probable that the surfaces of these two planets are formed of dark colored material.—Prometheus.

First Gaslight in New York.
In an article published in Light Mr. Robert E. Livingston states that the first man to use gas in New York city was Mr. Samuel Leggett, who lighted his house at 7 Cherry street with it. The people kept at a respectful distance from the house, fearing an explosion. Newport, R. I., and Baltimore soon followed New York.
