LOCAL ITEMS.

J. W. Stuchel owner of the Baker City grocery, is in the city today

Harry Benson, manufacturing census enumerator, has returned from a trip through Wallowa county.

Mrs. Oliver Borlow of Elgin, has returned to her home after visiting with friends here for a few days.

Merrit Combs, a well known Starkey resident is a La Grande visitor today.

A. J. Sullivan, postmaster of Starkey, accompanied by his wife are here today transacting business

Mrs. H. A. Braidges of Colorado returned to her home today after spending some time visiting her son Prof. F. A. Bridges of this city.

Circuit Judge J. W. Knowles has accepted an invitation to deliver the Fourth of July oration at the Joseph celebration.

R. L. Dunegan has returned from Perrydale, Oregon where he attended the wedding of a sister. He is again at his place in the N. K. West store.

J. C. Bell and wife of Iowa are here today as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bell, who have recently arrived here to locate permanently.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Arden of Starkey are here today attending to matters of business at the land office. Mr. Alden is proving up on a homestead.

The Warren Construction company has a crew of men and a rock crusher here ready to commence crushing rock for the paving to be done for the city by that company.

Chas. Gray the evangelist singer who assisted in the Johnson revivals in this city some time ago, is here the guest of his brother, Rev. Frank Gray. The singer is on his way to Chicago.

Miss Grace Powell is here today visiting her sister, Mrs. Lou Given. Miss Powell has been a guest with her mother and sister at Portland and is now on her way to New York, her home.

Willie Wilkie was banished from the city last night and if he ever comes back he will have to stand arrest again, for he was paroled last evening after having been fined $60 for being drunk and disorderly and for attacking his mother.

Grand Matron Jennie Rinehart of the Order of Eastern Star, returned from Portland and Seattle this morning. After attending the grand lodge where she was elected Grand Matron she went to Seattle to visit friends. Her election places the Eastern Star headquarters in La Grande.

Tomorrow morning a delegation leaves this city as delegates to the state convention of Christian churches of the state, to be held at Turner, Oregon. Those who will attend from here are: Rev. and Mrs. Ford Ellis, Maud Simpson, Ruth Cotner, Eva Cotner, Floy Coffee and Edith Weaver.

Wm. Franch will start soon for Winnemucca, Nev, stopping at all way stations to sell his wares. He intends to make the entire journey by automobile. He will hire a local machine for the trip, and expects it will require about ten days time. This will perhaps be the longest junket by auto ever taken by a traveling salesman.

F. S. Neuhart, wife and son Albert Lyman, arrived this morning from Portland intending to attend the pioneer reunion here but came one day too late. Mr. and Mrs. Neuhart are pioneers of the true sort, living here for many years before removing to Portland. Mr. Neuhart was the original owner of the site where the Hot Lake Sanatorium now stands, and still has considerable property near the city.

Error in Bank Bill.

Washington, June 23.—It has been discovered that the Postal Savings Bank bill passed yesterday contains no provisions for when it becomes effective.

MORE ABOUT THE EYE.

Finer Work is Now Required of the Eyes.

The following article is the third of a series written by Dr. M. P. Mendelssohn for the benefit of the public:

It is true that more people wear glasses now than formerly but it is equally true that the eyes are called upon to do finer work than formerly. Inventions like the sewing machine save the hands at the expense of the eyes.

The pioneers worked in the fields, and the forest. They did not work their eyes nearly so much as their whom, at least in the cities, are engaged in work that constantly tends to strain the sight. But for all that, statistics show fewer persons lose their sight than formerly.

The reason for this is that in the last two decades we have learned much about the care of the eyes.

The pioneer knew mighty little about the proper fitting of glasses; about as little as they knew about the teeth. Nowadays we save the eyesight by employing the right lens.

When reading or working near a window, let the light fall over the shoulder, when possible.

Don't open the light. Whenever possible, do work demanding keen vision by artificial light.

Never let any strong light, like electricity shine directly into the eyes.

Whenever the eyes become blood-shot and tired, rest them if possible. It may save trouble later.

Avoid reading on trains. The effort made by the eye to focus on the constantly vibrating point causes an undue strain.

Don't read in bed, and don't try to read or do work requiring keen vision by an imperfect light. Use a white light to read or to work by. Never one filtered through a colored shade.

Never bathe inflamed eyes in cold water, but use that which is lukewarm.

A cold wave striding the eyes is injurious and they are strained unduly if you go directly from a very warm room into an extremely cold atmosphere.

Avoid having your bed so placed that a strong light strikes the eyes immediately upon awakening. This is especially bad for children.

The eye requires time for adjusting itself to a bright light without causing strain.

In short, use your eyes with consideration. Have them properly fitted, if glasses are needed, and they will serve you well. It is wonderful the amount of abuse that the eye will stand when the general health is good. Some persons with weak eyes will get along without glasses for a long time, but invariably, they suffer late in life often by being unable to read in their declining years when reading would be such a comfort to them.
