LOCAL ITEMS.

Don Myers arrived home today from a business trip to Portland.

A. A. Thomas left for Nampa, Idaho, this morning to transact business matters.

Mrs. Eria Carlock left this morning for Hood River and Portland to be gone for several weeks.

Mrs. J. A. Riggs and mother, Mrs. J. P. Clark of this city, left last evening for Long Beach, where Mrs. Riggs lives. Mrs. Clark will make her home there for a time.

Gilbert Wittets, representing the American Laundry Machinery Company, is in the city today closing a contract with Cherry's New Laundry for their machinery.

J. J. Johnson, past lecturer of the state grange, and at present grand master of the Multnomah county grange, arrived this morning to participate in the program conducted by the grangers at the Chautauqua today.

Rt. Reverend Bishop Charles O'Reilly was a passenger this morning east bound, on his way to Baker City, after a stay of several weeks at sea level. He affirms his health is much improved and he is going back to assume his duties at Baker.

S. B. and C. B. Williamson, of Lostine, Wallowa county, are in the city today visiting friends.

Mrs. J. B. Wolfe, a prominent W. C. T. U. worker, who lives in Union, was a visitor at the Chautauqua yesterday.

Mrs. Ada Wallace Unruh, state president of the W. C. T. U. returned to her home in Portland this morning. She delivered an interesting address before the Chautauqua yesterday afternoon.

Rev. and Mrs. Ford Ellis returned today from Turner, Oregon, where with several other delegates from La Grande, they have attended the Christian church convention and camp meeting.

Mrs. Thomas Walsinger of this city, leaves tonight for Asotin, Wn., where she will visit with her brother, Joe Woodell. She will be accompanied to Asotin by Miss Woodell, her niece, who has been visiting friends in and about La Grande for several weeks.

Miss Syde Budge did not undergo an operation for tumor of the throat yesterday, as it was found that her physical condition was unfit. She will rest for two weeks and at the end of that time undergo the operation which will be an extremely delicate one.

"Doc" Harned, his wife, son and mother, arrived today from Portland, to visit with Mr. and Mrs. George Good and family. They were formerly residents of La Grande, but Mr. Harned was promoted from local O. R. & N. service to the yardmastership at Portland, where he is now located.

Earl Kilpatrick, formerly a La Grande boy, but since his graduation from the U. of O., principal of the schools at Pleasant Hill, is here today intending to remain until after the Chautauqua. He represents the university of Oregon correspondence school.

Rev. and Mrs. Upton H. Gibbs, Mrs. N. S. Honan and Mrs. C. W. Preston constituted a party that left this morning for points along the coast. The last named lady is on her way to Southern California for an extended stay and the others go to a summer resort near Hood River and then to Portland. Mr. Gibbs will remain about a month and Mrs. Gibbs will probably remain longer.

It is hoped by the Lyle Tuesday Musical that Ex-Governor Joseph Folk will be able to appear informally at the afternoon program of the musical tomorrow.

Last Night "Across the Desert." A show with most abounding comedy—in fact nearly every character a comedy part. "Across the Desert" will be seen for the last time tonight at the Airdome.

Tomorrow night Miss Tucker and company will present for the first time in La Grande, "In the Hands of the Czar." As the name implies, this play is a Russian society bill, giving you an idea of European diplomacy, also brimming over with laughable comedy and plenty of interesting situations.

A SERIOUS DINER.

The Way the Great Emperor Charles V. Ate His Meals.

The diary of a German gentleman, Bartholomew Sastrow, who lived in the time of the Emperor Charles V., gives us a good idea of the gastronomic customs of those times. Sastrow's description of the table habits of the greatest ruler in his day is very interesting.

Young princes and counts served the repast. There were invariably four courses of six dishes. The emperor had no one to carve for him. He began by cutting his bread in pieces large enough for one mouthful, then attacked his plate. He often used his fingers while he held the plate under his chin with the other hand.

When he felt thirsty he made a sign to the "doctor" standing by the table; then they went to the sideboard for two silver flagons and filled a goblet which held about a measure and a half. The emperor drained it to the last drop, practically at one draft.

During the meal he never uttered a syllable, scarcely smiled at the most amusing sallies of the jesters behind his chair, finally plucked his teeth with quills and, after washing his hands, retired to a window recess, where anybody could approach him with a petition.

SALT WATER.

Deep Seas Are More Saline Than Those That Are Shallow.

The density of sea water depends upon the quantity of saline matter it contains. The proportion is generally about 3 or 4 per cent, though it varies in different places. The ocean contains more salt in the southern than in the northern hemisphere, and the Atlantic contains more than the Pacific. The greatest proportion of salt in the Pacific is in the parallels of 22 degrees north latitude and 17 degrees south latitude. Near the equator it is less, and in the polar seas it is least, from the melting of the ice.

The saltiness varies with the seasons in these regions, and the fresh water, being lighter, is uppermost. Rain makes the surface of the sea fresher than the interior parts, and the influx of rivers renders the ocean less salt at their estuaries.

Deep seas are more saline than those that are shallow, and inland seas communicating with the main are less salt, from the rivers that flow into them. To this, however, the Mediterranean is an exception, owing to great evaporation and the influx of salt currents from the Black sea and the Atlantic. The water in the strait of Gibraltar at the depth of 670 fathoms is four times as salt as that at the surface.—St. James' Gazette.

Any one who carries about a four leaved clover will be lucky and will have the power of discovering ghosts or evil spirits. With it under the pillow the lover may insure dreams of the beloved one. A fragment in the shoe of a traveler insures a safe journey. Of the five leaved clover it is declared that if it be worn on the left side of a maiden's dress or fastened behind the hall door the Christian name of the first man who enters will be the same as that of the future husband. The power of the four leaved shamrock for good is familiar to all from Lover's pretty and once popular song, the speaker in which pictures what she would do should she find the magic plant:

I would play the enchanter's part and scatter bills around, And not a tear or aching heart should in the world be found.

The Nature of Friendship.

Friendship may be fostered, but cannot be forced. Two are as one, not because it is in the will of either, but because it is in the nature of both. When souls of similar fiber encounter each other the gods preside at the meeting. I may not cockily say, "I will make this man my friend." He either is or is not my friend without any decision of mine or his. The ages have been shaping the two of us, and if we fit into each other well and good; if not, we know it instinctively and are worlds apart though we toast our shins at the same fire and bandy words till doomsday.—Richard Wightman in Metropolitan Magazine.

Humor and Philosophy

JUST HIS WAY.

THE night hawk sits and works away until the night has sped. And in the early morning gray the pillow finds his head. From him that need have fears, he rises from his laggard bed. About the hour of noon, and how he kicks some one chance To wake him up too soon!

No early bird is he to catch the worm that first appears. It's only lightning bugs and bats from him that need have fears. All rules concerning morning air. At once would he revise. He does not think that it will make him healthy, wealthy, wise.

Why does he turn the thing about and waste the midnight oil? And to complete his foolishness one-half the daylight spoil? He couldn't tell himself just why He makes the night of day. His only reason is "Because." That's all that he can say.

A strange and wondrous bird is he, A human bat, indeed. The wheels lie dormant in his head All day; at night they speed. The rules that govern other men To him do not apply. And if you ask him to explain He winks the other eye.

TO THE PUBLIC.

We are Agents for Parisian Sage, and Know the Guarantee is Genuine.

Parisian Sage, the quick acting hair restorer, is guaranteed:
To stop falling hair.
To cure dandruff.
To cure itching of the scalp.
To put life in faded hair.
To make harsh hair soft and luxuriant.
To make hair grow or money back.
What Parisian Sage has done for others it will do for you. Read the following:

"I was told of your great remedy, Parisian Sage, that it would grow hair on bald heads, so I got a bottle and tried it and it is fine. I am a young man, and only 25, and was completely bald on the top of my head, and now I have hair one inch long, with the use of only one bottle. I shall certainly keep on using it until I have a good head of hair, which I have no doubt it will bring."—Oscar Armstrong, engineer, Belleville Horse-shoe and Rolling Mill Co., Belleville, Ont., Aug. 21, 1909.

Parisian Sage is the most delightful hair dressing made, and is a great favorite with the ladies who desire beautiful and luxuriant hair. Price 50 cents a large bottle at Newlin's store, or by express, charges prepaid, from Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The girl with the auburn hair is on every bottle.
