MEN TO PROBE OPINIONS

CLUB NAMES COMMITTEE TO STUDY COLLEGE MATTER

About Twenty Business Men Attend Session of the Club Last Night

Appointment of a committee to ascertain definitely the consensus of opinion in business circles relative to the establishment of a college in this city, is the outcome of a meeting of a score of prominent business men at the club parlors last evening. The matter was discussed pro and con, but the prevailing sentiment was that the institution would be a drawing card to the city's assets.

At the conclusion of the general argument on the matter, the president, John Collier, was instructed to select a committee of men to thoroughly investigate the situation locally.

The committee will be named by Mr. Collier this afternoon sometime, and the matter of carrying out the wishes of the club will be commenced.

CARRY GUNS IN AUTOMOBILES

TROOPS EQUIPPED WITH RAPID FIRE EQUIPMENT.

Infantry Is Ready to Prevent Further Riots in Ohio.

Columbus, Aug. 16.—Thirty-two patrolmen were dismissed from service today, for refusal to man street cars operated by strike breakers. Columbus again took on a martial air, with troops camped at the capitol grounds, and automobiles near by with mounted rapid-fire guns aboard.

The troops will not interfere with the strike, except in case of riots. The First Regiment of Ohio Infantry arrived today.

Baker Man Shot by Boys.

Councilman W. H. Shoemaker was shot and narrowly escaped a fatal injury while out riding Sunday afternoon. He was driving along Second street between Campbell and Madison when something struck him in the face just below the left eye. He thought it was a stone and wiped the blood off with his handkerchief. He supposed the stone had been thrown by some boys in an alley back of the Pollman house, and left the rig to look for them. On First street he caught the Schlund and Hoff boys who were running east. He asked them who threw the stone, but they denied all knowledge of the affair.

Mr. Shoemaker then went to the office of Dr. Parker to have the wound dressed and was surprised to learn that he had been shot, and that a bullet from a .22 rifle was lodged in his nose.—Baker City Herald.

TAFT SLEEPS MUCH

Executive Sleeps in Automobile or in His Chair.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 16.—Special.—The secret of President Taft's splendid health is out. It is his ability to take advantage of every opportunity to recuperate from his labors and to snatch a few minutes of refreshing sleep between activities.

Residents along the shore boulevard have grown accustomed to the sudden appearance of an automobile with a big passenger just visible through the dust—and that passenger sound asleep. It is the President.

The executive often sleeps in his automobile going or coming from the Myopia golf links—that is, when he makes the journey alone. The other day when the presidential party motored 71 miles over to see Miss Della Torrey, the aunt of the Chief Magistrate, the executive slumbered peacefully nearly all the way back. The automobile went nearly 45 miles an hour the greater part of the way.

It is this faculty of the President to snatch a moment's rest at every available opportunity—the ability to throw off the cares of state and gain strength in little cat-naps—that keeps the head of the nation strong and healthy despite his arduous labors. It is said that on his trip across the continent and back last fall the president would board his special train completely worn out after a speech or reception, drop into a chair, and in a moment be fast asleep. Twenty minutes later, when a crowd at another station clamored for his appearance, he would away, fully refreshed.

Captain "Archib" Butt, military aide, has caught the habit. It is a common sight late in the evening to catch a glimpse of the presidential automobile under an electric light. Captain Butt sound asleep. There are always two other occupants, however—who are very much awake—Robinson, the chauffeur, and the secret service operative.

Most people, including the president of the United States, come to the summer capital with the idea of enjoying the ocean breezes. Hundreds of Boston business men live in Beverly, and "commute" to Boston daily. It has remained for Joe Juni proprietor of one of Beverly's justly celebrated laundering establishments, and a countryman of Wu Ting Fang, the wise, to reverse the usual order of things. Joe "commutes" to Beverly, and lives in Boston.

"No like climate," he said to a group of newspaper correspondents. "Business him good, climate velly Boston, him heap better."

County Clerk Returns.

County Clerk Ed Wright and family returned home today from a hunting trip to Cove, with a full limit of grouse.

HIGH STANDARD FOR EDITOR.

Judge Knowles Commends H. W. Scott's Vigorous Courage.

(From Monday's Oregonian.)

La Grande, Ore., Aug. 14.—The tributes to the memory of the late Harvey W. Scott that since his death have appeared in The Oregonian bespeak the high regard in which he was held by all alike, personal friends and political foes. The eulogies pronounced upon him by those who opposed him showed that even his political opponents admired the man because he had the courage to vigorously defend his convictions.

There was nothing of the cringing sycophant that "bows the pliant hinges of the knee that thrift might follow fawning" in the make-up of Harvey W. Scott. If he liked a man, a principle or a policy, he said so in no uncertain language. If he did not like the principle for which a man stood, he fought him with all the weapons in his well-filled armory of denunciation. He would rather be right than be consistent.

Scott was a statesman rather than a politician. He scorned the base deed by which the successful politician did ascend. Although he passed the age of three score years and ten, the allotted age of man, yet his death was untimely. Untimely because he could accomplish more in a short time for the state in which he lived, than could be accomplished by a man of ordinary ability in a life time. No man has done more to advance the interests of the state of Oregon and the great Northwest than he.

"He was a friend of truth, of soul sincere, in action, faithful, in honor clear. Who broke no promises, served no private ends, sought no titles and forsook no friends."
