State Fair Season.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—With the opening of the Iowa State Fair at Des Moines next week, the state exhibition season will be on in full blast in the central West and Southwest. With prosperity generally prevailing throughout the agricultural regions, these annual displays promise to be actually, as well as in the small bills, "bigger and better than ever before." September will be a busy month for those who follow the big fair circuit. Following the Iowa show, which closes September 2, comes the Minnesota fair at Hamline, the Ohio fair at Columbus, and the Nebraska exhibition at Lincoln. All of these open September 5. The following week comes the Wisconsin, Indiana and Kansas state fairs, running from September 12 to 16. The Michigan state fair at Detroit is scheduled to open on September 19; the Oklahoma fair at Oklahoma City on September 27; the Illinois state fair at Springfield on September 30. The first day of October witnesses the opening of the Missouri state fair at Sedalia, and on October 15, the Texas state fair begins at Dallas.

What is Itch Dirt?

It is the old Anglo-Saxon name for dandruff, and it is a good one. If you have dandruff you have itch dirt, and the little microbes that are part and parcel of dandruff, are working persistently night and day, and sooner or later will reach the very life of your hair and destroy its vitality.

Then you'll be bald—bald to stay—for not even the wonderful rejuvenating power of Parisian Sage can grow hair after the hair bulb or root is dead. Parisian Sage cures dandruff. Newlin, the druggist, sells it, recommends it, and guarantees it; only 50 cents a large bottle and your money back if it fails to cure dandruff, falling hair and itching of the scalp. If you do not live near the Newlin drug store, where Parisian Sage is sold, the American makers, the Iroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y., will send you a bottle for 50 cents, all charges prepaid. There is no hair restorer so good—accept no substitute. The girl with the auburn hair is on every bottle.

We have an unusually complete stock of trusses, and we know how to fit them. Prices from $1.00 up.

Give Quick Action.

A. T. Hill reports that A SINGLE DOSE of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as compounded in Alder-Ika, the new German appendicitis remedy, relieves any stomach or bowel trouble. Many La Grande people are being helped.

"Can be depended upon" is an expression we all like to hear, and when it is used in connection with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy it means the doctor fails to cure diarrhoea, dysentery, bowel complaints. It is pleasant to take, equally valuable for children and adults.

A Shrewd American Girl

By HELOISE BRAYTON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Miss Christine Atherton, an English girl whose birth had been of ordinary parents, was a guest at the seat of the Duke of Brentnord. Miss Atherton was in love with the duke's oldest son and heir, the Marquis of Hiddleton. Among the guests at the duke's residence, Slapper Grange, was a Kansas girl, Miss Edith Brown, the daughter of one who if he had been titled would have been called the prince of packers. Miss Brown was expected to inherit a large fortune, and this was the reason for her being at Slapper Grange, for the Brentnords were not overburdened with ready cash, and the marquis was on the lookout for a wealthy American wife.

Now, Miss Brown had no more reverence for a title than for a membership of a sewing society. She was one of the kind to see through a millstone, and it was plain to her that the marquis wanted her for her money, and Miss Atherton wanted the marquis for himself.

"So long as I don't want him myself," mused Miss Brown, "why shouldn't I help this young English girl to get him?"

Now, there was a skeleton in the Brentnord closet. The duke, who was an old man, was a kleptomaniac. He was not allowed when in the city to go into the shops without a footman to follow him and pay for what he stole. When the old gentleman appropriated an article the footman would step up to the clerk behind the counter from which it was taken and say:

"Is grace is shopping today. 'Ow much for the 'and mirror 'e took?" "I see," the clerk would reply. "That one is three and six."

This would be followed up by other purchases acquired in the same way and duly paid for by the footman. There was nothing upon which the marquis was so sensitive as this matter of his father. He had made every effort to avoid the disgrace, even to an attempt to shut his father up, but as kleptomaniac is not a form of insanity that warrants confining a person in bedlam the duke maintained his liberty.

One morning Miss Brown remained in her room when the others were down to breakfast and, being alone on the floor, went into Miss Atherton's room, took all the jewelry the poor girl had, carried it to the duke's apartment and slipped it into the pocket of a coat she found hanging in a closet. Then she went downstairs to breakfast.

After the meal Miss Brown kept Miss Atherton under observation so that she might be the first to meet the English girl after the discovery of the loss. Just before luncheon Miss Atherton came out of her room with a terror-stricken look on her face. Miss Brown was in the hall.

"My jewels!" exclaimed Miss Atherton. "What of 'em?" asked Miss Brown, putting a finger on her lip to enjoin caution.

"They're gone."

"Hst! The duke? You know his falling?"

"I've heard of it."

"Don't say a word about it. The marquis would never forgive you."

"Do you really think it best?"

"I do."

"And I must lose the gems?"

"Never mind that; they will come back to you."

That night at dinner Miss Atherton appeared without a particle of jewelry. The marquis noticed it, but made no comment. After dinner he joined Miss Atherton on the terrace. He never noticed the absence of anything belonging to any of his guests without dreading lest his father had purloined it.

"Christine," he said, "why did you leave off your jewels today at dinner?"

"Oh, they're so insignificant," she said, "compared with what the other ladies wear."

"Miss Brown, for instance."

The lady named led that day appeared bedizened with a small fortune in diamonds.

"Hers are very handsome."

"Umph! These Americans don't know when or where to load up with stones."

When on future occasions the marquis noticed that Miss Atherton still refrained from wearing her jewels he wondered. Then one day Miss Brown spoke to him of the omission.

"She doesn't wear them," said the marquis, "because she's ashamed of them."

"Nonsense," replied Miss Brown. "That's not her reason. She has too much kindness in her to hurt your feelings by giving you the true one."

"Good gracious! You don't mean they have been stolen!"

"I do."

"And the thief?"

"Search your father's pockets."

The marquis made the search and returned the jewels. The incident decided him on marrying for love or money. He proposed to Miss Atherton, much touched that she had preferred to lose her jewelry to accusing his father.

"As for that American girl," he added, "she had the delicacy common among her countrymen. She did not hesitate to remind me that my father is a thief."

Miss Brown left the grange covered with jewels, but when she got in a train she put them in her satchel.

Sister's Beau.

Mr. Binks—Is that you, Johnnie? Tell your sister there's no hurry. We have plenty of time.

Johnnie—Can't stop now, Mr. Binks. Sister was washing her hair today an' left it hangin' on th' line, an' the wind just now blew it over the fence, an' I'm hurryin' so's I can get there before the bull pup chews it!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Unafraid.

Who's afraid of a cow? They're so gentle and kind You can go up quite close and they none of 'em mind. An' they like little girls, so I've heard people say. But I wish, oh, I wish, they was furdur away!

Pooh! Who's afraid? They're as good as can be. An' one's a child cow that is younger than me. An' they give us good milk, an' there's nothing to fear. But I wish, oh, I wish, that my daddy was here!
—Harper's Magazine.

An Economical Move

"Good morning!" said Mrs. Stinjay. "Pardon my calling so early, but I saw your advertisement for a cook!" "But," interrupted Mrs. Hiram Offen, "surely you are not after the place?" "Oh, no; I need a cook myself, and I thought you might send to me all the applicants you reject.—Catholic Standard and Times.
