Sketches Of People In Print

E. N. FOSS.

A MAN who is frequently mentioned these days as a probable nominee for vice president on the Democratic ticket is Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts, the Democrat who carried the rock ribbed Republican Fourteenth district of congress. That victory has attracted wide attention to him in the past year, and it is now believed that if he can keep himself in the public eye he will be practically certain of a place on the Democratic national ticket in 1912.

Foss is the sort of business man that every politician welcomes into politics—until he gets in. It's on the level with him. He doesn't care about being elected—to hold an office is bound to interfere tremendously with a dozen or so business enterprises—but he dearly loves to fight. He is a dynamo in breeches. He began life as a lumber salesman and put a prohibitive tariff on the pursuit of happiness for his competitors. Finally he was taken into the opposition firm, married the opposition's daughter and has been putting into practice a number of highly original ideas ever since.

Why do some men succeed so tremendously, while others just plod along and fail to get out of the rut? Well, take the case of Lewis Nixon, the famous shipbuilder, who has just been appointed chairman of the committee for the betterment of steamship service by the pan-American conference.

At Annapolis Lew Nixon more than "made good." In fact, he justified his appointment to such an extent in the estimation of his patron that today the record made by General Eppa Hunton's protegee is a precedent set for other cadets. Young Lew Nixon stood at the very head of his class the first year, and every succeeding year found him still No. 1. In 1882 he was graduated at the head of his class and with a phenomenal record in all his classes.

LEWIS NIXON.

"How did you manage to do it?" he was once asked. To which he replied: "I just worked. I knew what I wanted, and I just rolled up my sleeves and worked to get it."

And it was by rolling up his sleeves and working that brought his later successes.

You will see the name of Thomas L. Higgen of Massachusetts mentioned frequently in the dispatches from now on, for as president of the independent petroleum marketers he is going to lead the fight that organization now proposes to make against the Standard Oil company. Mr. Higgen was born in Petersburg, Ind., on Nov. 26, 1858. His father was a German, and Thomas was the fifth of eleven children. At the age of sixteen he went to Albany, N. Y., where he became a clerk in a clothing store. In the meantime his father had experimented with a formula for the manufacture of axle grease, but which the father could not make a commercial success. Later the sons established a small factory and manufactured the grease for sale.

The business is now large and successful, and it is said that the Standard Oil company once offered $600,000 for the plant.

Dr. William T. Hornaday, who has been engaged in a controversy with Secretary Nagel over the destruction of the seals on the Pribilof Islands, became the head of the New York Zoological park because he was the one man on the continent who ought to be at its head, and he is staying there for the same reason. He was born in Plainfield, Ind. in 1854, and with the exception of one period of error, during which time he dabbled in the real estate business, he has been in the wild animal line—alive, dead, skinned and stuffed.

DR. HORNADAY.

The list of the sportsmen's clubs he belongs to would fill a book, and if he wore all the medals with which he has been adorned for his services when he went out still hunting he would sound like a tin shop falling off a hip roof. Dr. Hornaday has published a dozen or so books of real scientific value and has hunted big game everywhere.
