given exclusive attention. This call follows the report of M. C. Heffron a prominent mining expert of Victoria, Colorado, who in the past few years has discovered and financed many valuable mines in Colorado. Mr. Heffron has spent several days in the mining belt around Joseph and as a result has declared that he will continue the investigation. He will confer with the commercial club tonight relative to the development of the mines in this section of Oregon, for he is high-

HOMESTEAD LAW
UNCHANGED

CHANGES REFER TO IDAHO AND NOT OREGON.

Idaho Law Passed While Oregon Law,
Similar, Is Killed.

Reports going the rounds that the Oregon homestead law is changed permitting winter absence from homesteads, apply only to the government land in Idaho and has no bearing on the local situation. This is the announcement of local land officials today and is sent out to quiet the curiosity of many who have seen the article in various newspapers. Senator Borrah of Idaho succeeded in getting that law through last winter but Senator Bourne who labored to get the same law through for Oregon failed.
Consequently the law is not changed in Oregon.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

ONE of two things generally concerns us, but when we have to be concerned about two of one thing we want to select the thing ourselves.

Do the best you can all the time and you will at least keep busy.

A man who is fussy about his neckties ought to keep his shoes well polished—but does he?

Don't try to drown your troubles.
They can swim like fish. Just forget them.

People who are having theories as to business seldom lack practice of having them.

It really seems disproportionate that it takes so little to make some people mad and so much to please them.

When you sit down hard on some people you often find the seat uncomfortable.

We are often admonished to keep our poise, and the admonisher seems to forget that we must first get it.

A Poet's Thoughts.
"Don't you sometimes have thoughts that are unutterable?" asked the sweet young thing who was on the verge of graduating.

"Never," replied the poet with the unbarbered hair, "but I seem to have a good many that can't get into print."

BIG CORN CONGRESS IN '12

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 9, 1910.— Special.—Madison Square Garden for the next or the 1912 National Corn Exposition.

To make it an international, instead of a National Exposition, and to interest, to the extent of exhibiting every country on the globe.

Since the coming fourth annual exhibit halls at the Ohio State Exposition grounds has grown to such proportions that every nook and corner in the several buildings will be filled, it has been suggested by a number of leading agriculturists and prominent government officials that the next show be made international, and that it be held in the famous Madison Square Garden in New York City.

No action will be taken on the proposition by the National Corn Association until well after the business of the coming big Corn show is settled, although much pressure is being brought to bear for an early decision, owing to the interest that is being taken by the United States government and the departments of agriculture of other countries.

While it is estimated that the Madison Square Garden, as a location for the show proper would be little, if any better than the excellent exhibit halls on the Ohio State Exposition ground at Columbus, in such a popular place of amusement, would be an induc-ment, which, it is claimed by those interested, would bring exhibits and delegations from every country, and the exposition would be the greatest world venture in the interest of the betterment of agriculture.

"The National Agricultural Exposition" is the new name proposed for the National Corn Exposition, owing to the fact that the intents and purposes of the event have so far outgrown the original purposes of the National Corn Association. When the first show was held in Chicago in Chicago in 1907, only corn was shown.
At the next two annual shows, which were held in Omaha, it was found necessary to enlarge the scope by adding classification for all grains and grasses. Interest has become so great, because of the extension and broadening out, that not alone all states, but the government departments of agriculture have become so directly interested and benefitted that the proposed change of name, in all probability, must come within the immediate future and before the 1912 exposition is held.

Already the plans for the fourth annual show which opens in Columbus, Ohio, January 30, to continue through February 11, have reached such proportions as to insure the greatest, by far, of any National Agricultural exposition that has ever been held, and the present indications are that exhibitors now clamoring for space cannot be accommodated.

Regardless of the fact that already more than 30 states have arranged for exhibits from the respective agricultural colleges and experiment stations, with the best of their products representing each state, there will be at least several more states to enter, correspondence from the additional states being of the most favorable tone, and each state college expressing the deepest interest.

The fact that there will be so many national and state meetings of the greatest possible importance to the agriculturist, to be held at the same time and place as the National Corn Exposition, has caused some of the leading men of the country to suggest Madison Square Garden for the next show, and it is more than likely that such pressure will be brought to bear upon the officials of the National Corn association that the proposition will receive most careful consideration.

Agriculturists over the country, besides government officials and agricultural college and experiment station people have been watching with an eagle eye the progress that has been made of the coming exposition and interest is now at the very highest tension.

Farm publications throughout the world are devoting much space to the enterprise, which has for its motto:— "Betterment of Agriculture" and with this most excellent and unlimited publicity it is bringing enthusiastic inquiries with each mail, seeking information.

As only educational features are considered, the big National show will be of the greatest advantage to the farmers and they highly appreciate the fact that it is to be kept free from any alliances which would be interested for profit alone.

During the past three winters at Washington Congressman Ellis has: Secured appropriations for three fine federal buildings for Oregon citizels.

Been honored by being placed on the ranking committee in the House of Representatives—Ways and Means. This is the first time Oregon has ever had a place on this great committee—with the influence it gives.

Been a consistent friend of the "old soldier" having supported every bill introduced in his behalf; secured passage of many private bills for very needy old veterans and their widows; and handled many hundreds of different claims for pensions which were acted on by the pension bureau.

The Second Oregon district stood at or near the head in the sums appropriated in the last House bill for its rivers and harbors. ($1,800,000).

Congressman Ellis has lived in the district over 26 years; he knows the people and what they want and need.
He has been in congress ten years, and gained an experience on the floor of the House and in the committee rooms and an acquaintance with the membership of Congress which puts him in a better position to satisfy the needs of Oregon than any new man could be for many years.
