PEOPLES FORUM

The Testimony of Those Who Know.
What a man who has no actual first hand knowledge of the subject may say has little weight. But the words of men who really know ought to carry conviction. Here is the testimony of such men:

I am somewhat familiar with conditions existing in the towns over the state which have voted "dry" and I have yet to visit the first city where in the business men of that community would prefer to return to the old conditions existing before the saloons were driven out. Without an exception, they advise me that they are doing more business and better business and the collections are far better than they were before they voted the saloons out. The people are buying more and better stuff and are providing better for their families than they did when they had saloons in their midst.—Governor Hay, of Washington.

Views of four Governors of States That Have Tried No Saloon Policy.
Mr. James D. Johnson, the leader of the local Prohibition fight in Roanoke Virginia, recently telegraphed to the governors of four prohibition states as follows:

Roanoke, Virginia, Sept. 24.
"Reported in local option fight here prohibition has worked great damage to material and moral interests of your state. Wire facts.

(Signed) JAMES D. JOHNSON.
Replies were received from Governor Comer of Alabama, Governor Kitchin of North Carolina, Governor Noel of Mississippi and Governor Stubbs of Kansas. They were as follows:

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 25, 1909
"J. D. Johnson, Roanoke Va.:
"Telegram received. The reverse is true.

(signed) "B. R. COMERS, Gov."
Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 24, 1909.

"James D. Johnson Roanoke, Va.:
"Report very erroneous. Prohibition has been generally successful. Has greatly diminished the consumption of intoxicants.

(Signed) "W. W. KITCHEN, Gov."
Jackson, Miss., Sept. 24, 1909.

"James D. Johnson Roanoke, Va.:
"Telegram received. Report that prohibition has damaged Mississippi, materially and morally, is untrue. On the contrary, as conceded by many who opposed it, and it is as well enforced as a number of other criminal statutes. Counties and cities which have had prohibition for ten years or more, outstripped those similarly situated licensing liquor sales before state-wide prohibition.

(Signed) "E. F. NOEL, Gov."
Topeka, Kan., Sept. 25, 1909.

"James D. Johnson, Roanoke Va.:
"The statement that our prohibitive policy has worked great damage to the moral and material interests of Kansas is a notable absurd falsehood. There is not a political or social organization in this state that does not concede that our temperance policy has promoted higher moral standards and practices, and advanced the material interests of the state enormously. Kansas was never nearer being unanimous for prohibition than it is today, because it is a good thing, and it would be impossible to find even five per cent of our people who would vote for the return of the saloon under any conditions of restrictions.

(Signed) "W. R. STUBBS, Gov."
Knoxville, Tenn., May 18, 1909.

Mr. R. R. Nance
Portland, Oregon.
Dear Sir.—Mayor Brooks asked me to give you some facts regarding the operation of the temperance laws in this city which went "dry" nearly three years ago.

I will say briefly that since saloons closed our city has improved 59 per cent from moral standpoint. Drunkenness has decreased and so has every other crime. Of course it is impossible to stop the shipping of liquor here and some is sold in violation to law, but the great benefit came when the open saloon was banished. The boys are not being trained to walk into saloons and drink beer and when its hard to get any they don't get it many times. To bear this out I will say that we seldom arrest boys now and I can not remember when we got one drunk. Our people are happier and the poorer classes have more of the necessities of life than when saloons were here.

I have given you briefly some facts. I don't know which side of the fight you are on and it don't make any difference to me as what I have said are facts and I am responsible for all statements contained.

Respectfully,
(Signed) W. P. CHANDLER,
Chief of Police.

Because we believe that prohibition will do for Oregon what these men say it has done for their communities we are working for the adoption of a prohibition law in Oregon. I and my friends have no pecuniary interest in this matter. But we are giving of our money to this cause for the common good and for the rising generation. I submit that we do not deserve hatred and adverse criticism for this, but rather the encouragement of every one who desires the best things for the community.
S. W. SEEMAN.

PEOPLE of OREGON UP TO YOU
It is now
