National Athletic Meet.

New Orleans, Oct. 14.—Tulane University field is today the scene of a gathering of athletes surpassing any previously held in the South. From the cities of the Pacific coast and the Atlantic seaboard and all the vast stretch of country between, the modern gladiators have come to the Crescent City to pit their strength and speed and skill against each other in the national championships of the Amateur Athletic Union.

All of the world-famous cracks of the Irish-American and New York athletic clubs, the two great organizations of the nation's metropolis, are entered in today's games, and confidently expect to make a showing that will leave all other cities far behind. Star college athletes from the great eastern and central western universities are here to compete against the southern talent. Heretofore the athletes of the athletic clubs came in for most of the attention, but the management of the present meet has made a successful effort to induce the college men to cast their lot against the club performers. Pennsylvania, Cornell, Michigan, Yale and a number of other prominent institutions are represented.

Only the events of lesser importance are scheduled for today and the big events of the meet will be pulled off tomorrow. Special interest attaches to the mile championship, in which Paull of Pennsylvania, Taylor, Mel Sheppard, Hedlund and Kiviat will come together. All have covered the distance around the 4:20 mark. It will not be surprising if the world's record is lowered in this race.

Bermuda Trolley War.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Oct. 14.—This British colony in the midst of the sea is agitated as never before. The onion and tourist crops are no longer the sole topics of conversation. The great question of the day is whether or not Bermuda is to have a trolley system, and on this matter the population of the Colony is split into bitterly warring factions. Since Bermuda became a British colony 300 years ago, boats and ancient stages have served as the sole means of local transportation. Now a Canadian company has been organized to build a traction system connecting the towns of the island. Thousands of people here—whites as well as blacks—have never seen a trolley car or railway train, and are opposing the innovation with almost a superstitious dread. An attempt was made some time ago to introduce automobiles into Bermuda, but the frightening of a horse by one of the machines, causing an accident, led to such public clamor that the local legislature passed a law prohibiting the operation of motor cars in the colony.

Jersey City to Celebrate.

New York, Oct. 15.—Jersey City will tomorrow begin a celebration of the founding of Bergen, a part of the present city, which will continue on a magnificent scale through the coming week.
