DARING WORK IN A FOG.

Clever Seamanship of a Captain in a Landlocked Harbor.

"The greatest piece of seamanship I ever saw," said a traveler, "was on a trip to Halifax. It was a marvel, and this is how it happened.

"We were steaming along about twelve hours out from our destination one summer afternoon. It had been clear all day, and the sea was beautifully blue, but about 4 o'clock the fog began to shut down—one of those swift, dense fogs that come on that coast and shroud a boat from sight in less time than it takes to tell of it. Of course the fog whistles began to blow, and many of the passengers got nervous under the strain of its continued bellowing.

"After dinner I went up on the bridge and was permitted to stay. The captain would not enter into any conversation—that is, I could not talk to him, but in his restless pacing up and down the bridge he would frequently make a remark to me. It went on that way for hours, the fog as thick as steam and the whistle reiterating its mournful warning.

"At length the captain gave a sharp order. 'Two points, northwest by north,' he said. 'No, a little more—that's right,' he finished as his command was executed. I was bewildered, and my face must have shown it as he passed me, for he vouchsafed the explanation that he wanted to pass within a few hundred feet of a certain whistling buoy near the harbor. I said nothing, but I did not understand. Why, the night was so thick that it was hard work to see from the bridge to the rail, and what could he mean by making a buoy?

"On and on we went, and always the fog seemed to me thicker. I could not sleep, and most of the night I was on the bridge. When it must have been nearly morning a new whistling began to sound on our starboard bow, as nearly as I could judge. It was a fearful fog siren, and kept getting nearer and nearer. We had stopped whistling, and the passengers were terribly frightened. I looked at one naval officer who stood with me on the bridge, and his face was like a dead man's. Mine must have been also.

"Then, just as it seemed that some giant steamship must strike us, so close was the whistling, the fog lifted like a veil, and there, not 150 feet away, was the buoy that the captain had mentioned.

"Almost at once the fog closed down again; but, do you know, he took us past two warships, into the landlocked harbor and up to the dock in it. It was magnificent, and, though we really could not put our admiration in tangible form, we got together and gave him a gold watch on the return voyage as a little souvenir."—New York Post.

Curious Baths in Penang.

One of the many things that strike the tourist as curious at Penang is the type of baths with which the hotels are provided. Penang is in the Straits Settlements, a British crown colony in the Malay peninsula, deriving its name from the straits of Malacca, which form the great trade route between India and China. From each of the first class rooms opens a dark, cement paved, damp smelling little room which serves as the bath. In it is an immense jar of porous brown earthenware about five feet high, nearly three feet in diameter in the middle and but one and a half feet in diameter at the top. It stands huge and graceful of outline, but dark and uninviting, and is full to the brim with water, not, however, to get into. Near it are a supply of soft soap and a long handled quart dipper. The proper procedure is to soap the body well, then throw several dippers of water over it, repeating the process until satisfied. There is water enough to keep it up for an hour or so, and there is a huge crash towel as large as a sheet to wrap up in when the bath is over.—Detroit News-Tribune.

Gamecocks in Panama.

The color line is not very distinctly drawn in the Latin republics. The San Blas Indians are found in and around Panama. Like the Seminoles of Florida, they never were conquered. A curious feature of native life in Panama is the cockfighting, which, like baseball in the United States, is more attractive to the public than any other form of recreation. Even the workmen on the streets have favorite birds tethered near by and seize every opportunity to test their prowess. The click-click of steel spurs as the birds strike each other, the spurting of blood and the clamor of men indulging in small wagers seem to supply the mental excitement that Spaniards find in bullfights and that English speaking races derive from less brutal contests. The backer of each gamecock stands behind it, and if his bird shows signs of exhaustion he takes it up and puts its bill into his mouth while he inflates its exhausted lungs. One gamecock in a fight, witnessed by the writer, appearing almost dead, was thus revived, went back into the pit and finally killed its opponent.—National Magazine.

SOCIETY AT LADD CANYON

Big Crowd Attends Party at Mulholland Home.

Ladd Canyon, Ore., Nov. 1. (Special).—The first social gathering of the season in this neighborhood was a dance given at the home of James Mulholland, by the young people in honor of Miss Kittle Mulholland's sixteenth birthday. The floor of the new addition to the house, which has just been completed, was probably glad when 12 o'clock rolled around and the young folks ceased their stamping for a bountiful lap supper. Those who were fortunate enough to receive invitations were: Misses Kate Banton, Mary Banton, Ellen Stevens of La Grande; Lulu Counsell, Dora Geiger, Maude Banton, Minnie Limeburger, Verdie Graham, Eva French of La Grande; Katie Campsell, Frankie Peebles, Helen Limeburger, Ruth Peepier, Mesdames Retta Allen, Lucy Graham, Martin Sheelley, Chas. Grandy; Messrs. Luther Geiger, Frank Braden, Eugene Banton, Ralph Limeburger, Edward Graham, Henry Counsell, Tommy Crawley and Earl Shealey of La Grande, Fred Stump and Evan Peebler. Miss Mulholland was the recipient of many presents.

A Halloween party was given last night by Misses Frankie and Ruth Peepier at their parents' home, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Peepier. A large crowd attended.

What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D. can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves, unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Because—We know that it gives instant relief to that torturing itch.

Because—D. D. D. starts the cure at the foundation of the trouble.

Because—it cleanses, soothes and heals the skin.

Because—it enables Nature to repair the ravages of disease.

Because—The records of ten years of complete cures of thousands of the most serious cases show that D. D. D. is today recognized as the absolutely reliable Eczema Cure.

Drop into our store today, just to talk over your case with us.—Newlin Drug Co. Nov. 3-5.
