TURKEYS SEEM PLENTIFUL.

Prices for Turkey Day Birds Have Not Been Definitely Established.

What the consumer this year will pay for his Thanksgiving turkey is yet a guess. The holiday is now exactly two weeks away, and nobody can say what turn the market may take in the meantime. A few facts, however, may serve to indicate probabilities, says the Portland Telegram.

Reports from the country generally agree that the turkey crop in Oregon this year is immense, probably the largest in the history of the turkey industry in the state.

In Idaho, also, the raising of turkeys in recent years has become one of the important industries, and the output of the birds there this year is said to be far greater than that of last season.

In other states to the eastward from which heavy shipments sometimes are drawn to the coast, the turkey crop is reported large. In all quarters the high prices at which turkeys have held, in the coast markets at least, for some years back, have been the main stimulus to heavier production this year. All around the gobbler tribe has scored a big increase.

As to probable prices of Thanksgiving time and later, one of the leading commission dealers said today:

"The chances are that turkeys at Thanksgiving time will sell at 20 to 24 cents a pound, according to quality, to the retail trade. In the event, however, of unusually heavy offerings from the country at that time, the market might drop, and in that case higher prices could be expected at the later holidays."

A range of 20 to 24 cents per pound in the wholesale market would probably mean 25 to 30 cents per pound at retail, and the last-named figures now seem to be about what the consumer will have to face in providing for the Thanksgiving dinner.

WESTON NORMAL KILLED (?)

Indications are That the Normal School Has Been Beaten Once More.

Portland, Nov. 10.—No records have been made here in regard to the Weston normal school, but it is believed the bill was defeated. Regarding county division, indications are that all county division schemes, including Orchard county, were defeated. Home rule, probably carried by a small majority and prohibition was decisively defeated. Save in Josephine county, which went prohibition by sixteen votes most of hitherto dry counties went wet, repudiating prohibition by a big vote. The data is as yet very incomplete. West this afternoon leads Bowerman by 4045 plurality, throughout the state and over 1500 in Multnomah county.

Returns today indicate West's plurality over Bowerman will be 3,000 or more. Save for the governorship the Republican ticket won straight down the line including state engineer. West this morning led by approximately 2,000 in the state and 900 in Multnomah county with over half of the votes counted. Prohibition is apparently decisively beaten by 11,000 or more. The Home Rule measure probably carried by a small margin. It is noticeable that 12 Oregon counties which previously went dry strongly this time went strongly wet.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable for children and adults, and when reduced with water and sugar, it is pleasant to take.
