TUCKER INJURED BY FALL

PEDAGOGUE FROM ISLAND CITY IS THROWN FROM BUGGY.

Wife and Lady Teacher Succeed in Bringing Runaway Team to Halt.

A runaway accident which to all indications at the time of its inception meant serious if not critical injury to the occupants of a vehicle coming in from Island City this morning, ended in slight injuries when Mr. Tucker, Mrs. Tucker and Miss Murdock, an Island City school teacher were headed for the opening day of the teacher's convention and while driving across the Fir street railroad crossing, came to grief when their team became frightened. In the sudden lurch of the buggy, the Professor was thrown from the buggy with much force, but, pluckily, Mrs. Tucker and Miss Murdock applied themselves to the task of stopping the runaway. With a show of horsemanship they brought the frightened runaways to a standstill in short order. Mr. Tucker, dazed by the fall to the pavement, was carried to the White grocery store and later taken to the Bacon-Hall offices for treatment. His injuries were slight and but for the fact that his clothes were ruined by the hard usage, would have been able to attend the convention this morning. To those who witnessed the feat of the women stopping the team, and who saw the beginning of the accident, the event was noteworthy. It was extreme good luck that the ladies were not thrown out as was the driver.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

If some captains of industry were to preach what they practice they might be in danger of losing their jobs as Sunday school superintendents.

A man likes to have his wife always dressed ready to go out with him whenever he asks her, but he expects three square meals a day just the same.

Giving advice is an excellent thing. It affords the giver much satisfaction and frequently amuses the recipient.

Nothing makes a man more righteously indignant than to be accused of doing a thing that he hasn't yet found time to perpetrate.

The man who declares that holdups would cease if people had more sand to resist the marauders finds it convenient to snore loudly if he hears a strange noise downstairs after midnight.

Many a man has started in life with 15 cents and has died with as much as $14 to his credit.

A Woman's Reason.

"Are you fond of boating, Miss Ethel?" "I should say I am." "What do you like best about it?" "My perfectly stunning yachting costume."

Needed a Good One.

"Oh, dad?" "What is it, my son?" "You have given me a dollar watch?" "Certainly!" "What good will it do me?" "It keeps excellent time." "What do I care about the time? I can't raise a cent on it when I am broke."

Tragic.

Jack and Jill Went up the hill To get an orange ice. When they came down Jill wore a frown— Jack didn't have the price.

Needed It.

"That man is a walking university!" "He is?" "Yes." "Well, I declare!" "Surprised?" "Yes. If he knows so much I'd think he would not walk, but use a motorcar and get his hair cut."

Didn't Look It.

"See that lady?" "Yes." "She knows all about raising children." "Does she?" "You bet she does!" "Doesn't look like a spinster aunt either, does she?"

Had a Choice.

"Dogs make up with me right away." "That is a sign of one of two things." "What are they?" "Either that you are a good man"— "Yes."—"or else that you look like a sausage."

Quite Young.

"He is very young." "Do you think so?" "I know it." "How young is he?" "Well, he knows absolutely every-
