PAID TRIBUTE TO THE ABSENT

LA GRANDE LODGE OF ELKS FULFILL ANNUAL OBLIGATION.

Impressive Services Occupied Yesterday Afternoon at Elks Auditorium.

With every nerve and feeling in accord, with every head bowed Elks lodge No. 433 of La Grande yesterday afternoon held its annual memorial services. The general public was invited and the hall was filled. Hot house flowers, intermingled with the stars and stripes were the decorations of the hall's interior. When Exalted ruler G. L. Biggers headed the long line of Elks as they marched into the auditorium and took their seats on either side of the hall it was a most impressive sight. The program was especially arranged for the occasion and included some of La Grande's best talent.

Following the opening ceremonies Mrs. Jay Van Buren impressively rendered the vocal selection, "Good-bye." Charles F. Cochran had been chosen to deliver the eulogy on the absent ones, and the general opinion is that it was one of the best, if not the best effort of the kind ever heard in the city. Mr. Cochran's long membership in the order aided him greatly and increased that feeling in the heart which is believed to be essential to inspire such an address as he delivered. Mrs. T. J. Scroggins sang, "Promise of Life" in a way that was wholly in accord with the occasion. She won for herself the increased admiration of her audience at the same time touching the heart-strings with her vocal selection in a way which added depth to the occasion.

The memorial address was delivered by Mr. W. C. Heller of Portland. His remarks were well chosen and well delivered.

With sacred music by the orchestra and closing exercises of the lodge, the Elks marched out to face the world, carrying with them the impressive words, music and memory of the day.

MYERS SUGGESTS.

appears likely that this will be limited to scouting. A scout which is not strong enough to pierce the enemy's line can be got as near as possible and then send an aeroplane 30 or 40 miles, obtain valuable information and then return to the scout, even if the aviator did not land on the scout he could be brought on board and deliver his information. The loss of an aeroplane would be of no moment, as the ship may easily carry others. The distance value of service of this kind is easily seen.

"The department contemplated further experiments along these lines with the belief that it will be necessary in the near future to equip all scouts with one or more aeroplanes to increase the distance at which information can be secured."

A saving of $4,300,000 in the estimates for the next fiscal year for the Navy Department is indicated by the Secretary—the second year of curtailment. Notwithstanding this economy in the past, the Secretary declares there has been an increase in the sea-keeping ability of the fleet of 15 per cent; an increase of 5 per cent in the average speed, of 20 per cent in the cruising speed and an increase of 16 per cent in machinery horsepower. Despite this latter item and the greater mileage of cruising, the cost of fuel used in the Navy has decreased $2,000,000. Singularly enough this decrease is more apparent during the latter half of last year than during the former, notwithstanding it was in the second half that most of the cruising occurred. The cost of maintenance for each ship in commission has shown an increase over the year before of $20,000.

The Secretary asks Congress for legislation establishing the present Meyer re-organization scheme. His recommendations in this respect however occasioned surprise in naval circles owing to their being less than was expected. It is believed that Meyer would request that the naval aides, who are line officers and replace the old civilian bureau chiefs, be given further executive power.

J. W. Greer, Greenwood, La., suffered with a severe case of lumbago. "At times the pains were so intense, I was forced to hypodermic injections for relief," he says. "These attacks started with a slight pain in the small of my back which gradually became fairly paralyzing in effect. My attention was attracted to Foley's Kidney Remedy and I am glad to say after using this wonderful medicine I am no longer bothered in any way by my old enemy, lumbago."
