if his vision could have extended far enough into the haze of evolution to foresee the ultimate triumph of incandescent electric lighting—the GENERAL ELECTRIC MADZA LAMP.

The sage old philosopher flew his kite during a thunder storm, and by means of a key attracted and discovered electricity, but evolution decreed that modern inventive genius should discover an incandescent lamp that is revolutionizing artificial light.

THE GENERAL ELECTRIC MADZA LAMP gives nearly three times the light of the ordinary carbon incandescent—and costs no more to operate. In addition to this it gives light of a vastly superior quality—a clear white light like the sun's rays.

Everywhere people are having their houses wired for electric light, since the invention of the GENERAL ELECTRIC MADZA LAMP. It has made electricity as cheap as it is convenient.

Come in for a moment today and let us prove to your entire satisfaction that there is no longer a possible excuse for you to be without the greatest of all household conveniences—electric light.

AT THE ISIN.

Russian Wolf Hunt Graphically Told by Moving Picture Machine.

Lovers of sport will not be disappointed at A Russian Wolf Hunt at the Isin tonight. The hunt is so graphically told by the pictures and the scenes so realistic that one seems to be seeing the wolf hunt himself. The hunt takes place on the cold snow timber lands of that mysterious country, Russia, and the hunters can be seen riding over the plains on horseback, leading those long legged wolf hounds until a wolf is sighted, when the dogs are released and the chase begins. The wolf goes loping across the plains and the dogs come closer and closer until one dog with an extra burst of speed nips the wolf in the flank and whisks it around and then the other dogs close in for the death struggle, and dogs and wolf are mixed up in a cloud of fling snow. The hunter rides up and throws himself into the fighting snarling mass of fur and beats the dogs off, ties the feet of the wolf together and the hunt is over. Ever devotee of hunting should see this picture. Love Laughs at Locksmiths, is a romantic love story, wherein cupid plays a prominent part and the lovers succeed in escaping parental vigilance and are married under trying circumstances. Suspicion is a human interest story of a mother, after the death of her child, turning her interest to the orphan asylum to distract her attention from her bereavement and the husband growing suspicious of her visits finally hires a detective to watch her and finds her amidst the little orphans, and he begs forgiveness and of course the picture ends in a happy reuniting. The Key of Life, a picture showing the reincarnation of a kitten into a spiteful woman and vice versa, taken amidst the superstitious of the Hindus.

AT THE ORPHEUM.

Weather Has Little Effect on the Attendance at the Vaudeville House.

Conditions of the past few days has had little effect upon the attendance at the Orpheum. The excellent program of this week has been a very pleasing one and all the individuals have been above the ordinary run of vaudeville. Jim Smith in his Chinese impersonator and monologist continues to be a favorite in his clever sketch. Willis & Estelle the Australian entertainers are also a good drawing crowd with their novel ventriloquist and singing and talking act. Wellington Bros., the boys that makes music out of roller skates and a singing and dancing skit ends the program for this week, but they have some thing doing every minute and receive repeated encores at every performance. The performance ends tonight as a special matinee program will be put on Sunday afternoon. "Custer's Last Stand," the story of the greatest Indian battle in American history. Manager Gardiner announces for next week the greatest spectacle ever seen in the West. For particulars of this program see the house ad Monday.

RATTO A RARE MAN.

Comes to La Grande December Twenty-sixth for One Night.

John B. Ratto is peculiar in his sympathetic interest, a careful and shrewd psychologist. Mr. Ratto always studies his audiences before opening his program, and adjusts his of-they filed into the assembly hall. They leave convinced that Ratto is an artist. Ratto lives every character he studies; when, for example, he represents Gunga Din (Kipling) he is Gunga Din.

Seldom can an unprofessional audience appreciate this poem, but Ratto has the rare quality of popularizing classics, simplifying them without having to make apologies to their builders.

While his programs are miscellaneous, each number naturally and logically follows the one which went before, combining to make a grand panorama of associated characters. In presenting each number, Mr. Ratto "makes up." He pencils in full view of his audience, telling an appropriate story the while. Pencilings finished, he turns quickly to the table mirror to adjust his wig, facing about to surprise you with the accuracy of the re-enactment.

Ratto has a noble personality, is zealous, gentlemanly, unselfish—he wants to please. He works hard, which explains his success.

"Custer's Last Stand."

A 4,000 foot film picture made on the Crow Indian reservation with Indians and soldiers by special arrangement with the government. The most thrilling and realistic motion picture ever conceived or constructed. Historically correct. Many Indian scenes and relay races on horses. Magnificent Indian parades. Six hundred painted warriors of the Sioux, Cheyenne and Crow tribes. These pictures were exhibited one hundred days in New York with lecture as we show them. The chance of a lifetime to see correct reproduction of Custer's last stand.

fering to the tastes of those before him. The result is almost magical. Absorbent interest lights up every face; enthusiastic attention crowds out the indifference so manifest when
