INCREASE LOAN FUND

Alumni of the University of Oregon Would Better Conditions for Poor

University of Oregon, Jan. 26 (Special)—As a result of the campaign on the part of the University Alumni to increase the Loan Fund for students to an amount that will accommodate every student of the university in need of help, gifts and the promise of more within the year to the amount of $2,000.00 have already been secured.

The Alumni, in backing the movement to increase the Loan Fund, from experience realize that there are many young men and women, of the type that constitute the bone and sinew of the state, who are deprived of the highest training in citizenship which the state can give them simply through the University on their own resources.

Hand in hand with this movement for a Loan Fund is the study by the University of the cost of the living problem for its students. It is keenly felt by the administration authorities that there is no real reason why students struggling for an education should be made the source of a single penny's profit to individuals or business concerns, so far as the cost of the student's living at the University is concerned. Much work has been done and the data gathered on the problem, and it is confidently believed that with proper initial equipment at the service of the University the cost of living to students can be kept at a level of the cost of the economic goods which they consume. With this idea in mind, it is hoped that the legislature at the present session may include in the special appropriation to be asked for by the University for building and equipment a sum to add a kitchen, dining room and storing cellar in the Men's dormitory. The cost would be about $10,000.00.

IRRIGATION COMPANY FORMED.

Willamette Valley to be Systematically Watered by Portland Concern

Portland, Or., Jan. 26 (Special)—Although the rainfall of the Willamette valley has always been considered ample for all purposes, comes now the proposal to irrigate it. A syndicate has been formed at Portland and a tract of 4,000 acres near Salem will be watered by means of a canal from the Santiam river.

The land has been purchased and the work is now going forward on the irrigating canals. It is expected to have the canals and laterals completed in time for watering the coming season's crops. It will be a surprise to some that a district where over 44 inches of rainfall a year is experienced needs irrigation, but experts have decided that much arger crops will be produced if water is supplied during the height of the growing season. Midsummer, which is a period of scant moisture. Alfalfa, forage crops for dairy cattle, root crops, and fruits are found to produce greater yields as well as much better quality where water is supplied to the thirsty soil.

Bishop Thurston Consecrated.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 25—The services of consecration of Rev. Theodore Payne Thurston as bishop of the diocese of Oklahoma took place here today, and was one of the most impressive ceremonies in the history of the Episcopal church of this city. It was 10 o'clock before the procession of bishops, clergy, laymen and choiristers who were to take part in the service reached St. Paul's church. The decorations of the church were most elaborate and it was crowded to its capacity.

The number of bishops participating was larger than usually takes part in a ceremony of the kind. Bishop Tuttle of Missouri, the presiding bishop of the church, officiated, assisted by the Right Rev. F. K. Brooke, missionary bishop of Oklahoma, and Right Rev. F. R. Milyspaugh, bishop of Kansas. The presenters were Bishop Brewer of Montana and Bishop Edsall of Minnesota. Rev. Samuel C. Welles of Vinita, Okla., and Rev. Theodore Sedgwick of St. Paul were the attending presbyters. The consecration sermon was preached by Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts, who was dean of the Episcopal Theological Seminary when Mr. Thurston was a student there.
