ADVISES PAVING FROM AFAR

FORMER RECORDER REPORTS IN FROM PETALUMA

Says That Town Not as Large as La Grande Yet all Paved.

"Go to it," writes Former Recorder D. E. Cox from Petaluma, Calif., on receipt of a notice from the city council that Pennsylvania avenue was to be paved. Mr. Cox still owns property on that thoroughfare and though he is away is anxious to have the street treated with the process.

Writing to L. M. Hoyt and other friends here from his new home, the former recorder advises La Grande to keep up its paving campaign. "Petaluma is almost entirely paved," he writes, "though it is not as large as La Grande and has nothing like the natural resources of the Grande Ronde town. Resident streets are considered misnomers unless they are treated with paving."

Mr. Cox apparently is well satisfied with his new surroundings as he makes no complaint.

MIGHTY ARCTURUS.

If This Star Were Our Sun It Would Instantly Consume the Earth.

The parallax of a star is its angular displacement as seen from two opposite points on the earth's orbit. The base line employed in this gigantic species of surveying is 186,000,000 miles in length, but the calculation is reduced to the semidiameter of the orbit. The results are at the same time amazing and instructive.

Let us take the famous star Arcturus, often called the "star of Job" because in the Old Testament the Almighty is represented, as saying to the unfortunate patriarch, who maintains a certain dignity in spite of his helplessness and his sufferings, "Canst thou call forth Arcturus and his sons?"

Many conflicting measures of the parallax of Arcturus have been made, but the latest made at Yale seem more probably correct than their predecessors. They fix the parallax at 0.068 seconds—i. e., sixty-six one-thousandths of a second of arc. From this it is easy to calculate the distance of the star. It comes out at nearly 290,000,000,000,000 miles (two hundred and ninety trillion miles). This is more than 3,000,000 times the distance of the earth from the sun.

Having this distance, we can calculate the actual amount of light shed by Arcturus, or, in other words, its actual brightness as compared with that of our sun, on the supposition that both were at the same distance from us. We thus find that Arcturus exceeds the sun as a light giver about 2,500 times! It is a sun 2,500 times brighter than ours.

Put the earth as near to Arcturus as it is to the sun and all life would be swept off by a blast of inconceivable heat. The summer temperature would rise to tens of thousands of degrees. The oceans would boil away. Vegetation would be burned up in a twinkling. The eyes of living beings would char in their sockets. The plains and mountains would burst into flame. Minerals would run in molten streams. There would be no comfort for a living world nearer to Arcturus than about 4,000,000,000 miles. If he has planets he must keep them at a respectful distance. And yet nearly 300,000,000,000,000 miles from him we can look into his blazing eye and see only a bright star.

Still, Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace maintains that this little earth, this tiny attendant of a tiny sun, is the only seat of intelligent life—outside of the misty midregion of disembodied spirits—that the universe contains, and Dr. Wallace is a learned man. But his learning is not that which astronomy offers.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York American.

Unavoidable Delay.
A woman went before the magistrate and modestly inquired:

"Your honor, can I have a warrant for the arrest of my husband? He boxed my ears yesterday."

"Certainly, ma'am," replied the judge. "I will make out a warrant on the ground of assault and personal injuries."

"Can I fetch the warrant in about a month?"

"In a month? Why won't you take it at once?"
"Please, your honor, when my husband slapped my face I took my rolling pin and hit him on the head so that he had to be removed to the hospital. The doctors say, however, that he will be on his legs again in a month."

Discrediting an Astrologer.

A certain king, says a tale from the Persian, asked an astrologer, "How many years of life remain to me?" The wise man replied, "Ten." The king became very despondent and betook himself, as one stricken with a sickness, to his bed. His vizier, who possessed great wisdom, sent for the seer and in the king's presence asked him, "How many years have you to live?" He replied, "Twenty." The vizier ordered that he should that very hour be executed in the king's presence. The king was satisfied and commended the sagacity of his minister and no longer attached any importance to the astrologer's saying.

Getting into German.

In the use of legal terms the German lawyer's gain in a saving of number of words over our equivalent expressions seems to be lost in multiplication of syllables in the words used by him. For example, he says "Zurückbehaltungsrecht" for "right of lien" and "gesamntgutsverbindlichkeiten" for "liabilities of common property." What an awful word he must have as an equivalent for our "imprescriptibility."—Docket.

REMOVES DANDRUFF

Puts Life into Faded Hair and Stops
Scalp Itch.

If your hair is dull and lifeless, is falling out and getting thin on top, then you need Parisian Sage, and the quicker you get it, the sooner you will thank the Newlin Drug Co. for selling you such a worthy dependable hair grower, dandruff cure and hair dressing.

Read what Mrs. M. A. May, of 107 East Elizabeth St., Detroit, Mich., writes on June 6, 1910:

"I have used many 'hair restorers' but have received no apparent benefit until I tried Parisian Sage. My hair is soft and silky, and while before I commenced using the remedy my hair was falling fast, was dry and harsh, faded, and altogether unlovely now just within the past few weeks several have remarked how lovely my hair was. It is also fine just for a dressing, leaving the hair soft and fluffy. It removes dandruff, and cures itching of the scalp. I certainly take pleasure in recommending Parisian Sage."

Parisian Sage is sold by the Newlin Drug Co. and druggists everywhere. Get a 50 cent bottle today, use it for two weeks and if you are not satisfied that it will do all that it is advertised to do you can have your money back. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package.
