"THE MAN OF THE HOUR"

George Broadhurst's Famous Play to be Given Here Wednesday

The history of the stage the past four seasons would make a barren and uninspiring narrative, for failure followed failure so closely that it was as unfortunate for managers as it was alarming to the devotees of dramatic art. Production followed production and nearly all met the same depressing fate. In this dearth of things dramatic, and among the few plays destined to hold the stage is George Broadhurst's greatest of all American plays, "The Man of the Hour."

The "Man of the Hour" is an example of the superlative in the drama. The play fulfills the requirements of dramatic art while the lesson it conveys vindicates the claim that the stage can be and frequently is an agency in uplifting the people comparable with the pulpit and the press. No other play produced in the United States in many years has been subject to so much favorable criticism. Here are some examples:

"The best play I have ever seen."
Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

"A play that means something."
Wm. Winter, Critic, N. Y. Tribune.

A special cast will be seen during this engagement; it musters a roll of some of the best artists on the American stage and includes: Harry English, Warren Conlan, John Moore, John Morris, Edward Keane, Clyde F. McCabe, Franklin George, John McKendricks, E. H. Felt, Geo. A. Cameron and Emma Naylor, Florence Mack, Virginia Irwin.

"A Gentleman from Mississippi"

"the Senator," "A Gentleman from Mississippi," will be given at the Steward March 3, by a special company under the direction of Wm. A. Brady. This is the play that ran so long in New York City, and when the summer came was transferred to the Aerial gardens, atop the New Amsterdam theatre, where the run was continued right through June, July and August, establishing for the first time in the history of the theatre that the public will go to see a play it wants to see even in a summertime roof playhouse. It was a strange experiment—this thing of giving "A Gentleman from Mississippi" with its fine domestic story and its exquisite comedy atmosphere, on a roof, hitherto associated with the irresponsible frivolities of musical comedy, of singing and dancing and clowning, and of entertainment prepared in the mistaken belief that the summertime audiences do not care for the plays they flock to see in the cooler weather.

Cash Register for Sale.

A first class National cash register for sale for $50 at the Midget meat market. This is a great bargain.

Irma La Pierre, one of the starring lights in "Seven Days" a big farce production that is coming to the Steward March 6. The attraction is making a stupendous hit this year and is running at the Hellig in Portland this week.

The Missing Word.

A "new missing" word contest has just appeared. It is as follows: A good church deacon sat down on the pointed end of a tack. He at once sprang up and said only two words. The last was "it." Any one guessing the first word and sending a dollar in cash will be entitled to this periodical for one year.—Lippincott's.
