Society and Clubs

Lenten is here—society rests a bit. With one dancing party and the routine card and club parties as practically the only attractions held out to those attached to functions, the week has been quiet.

Henry Schoenfeld and Frederick Bullard's most difficult pieces were subjects cleverly handled at a Tuesday musical program given Tuesday afternoon under the direction of Mrs. E. Polack. The biographies of these two composers opened the program and the difficult pieces were exceptionally well rendered by the people handling them. The only variation from Schoenfeld and Bullard was when Miss Gertrude Moore rendered a solo, "The Telephone." The pieces were composed for male voices but the soloists came up to requirements nicely. The program follows:

Life of Henry Schoenfeld Mrs. C. J. Scriber
Life of Frederick Field Bullard Mrs. Hattie McDonald
Solo, "An Indifferent Mariner" Mrs. O. E. Silverthorn
Duet, "Stein Song" Mrs. Corbett and Mrs. E. C. Moore
Solo, "The Telephone" Miss Gertrude Moore
Solo, Hunting Song Mrs. T. J. Scroggin

Intended as a review and resume of what has been done during the year, the Lyle Tuesday Musicale is planning a superb program for March 20 to be rendered March 20, at the Arcade theatre. The program, still in the embryo but roughly outlined, will include several prominent soloists of the club, chorus renditions, and other various members that will go to make up a program of exceptional value. The numbers to be rendered will be a review of the work covered during the winter months and will give the best talent in the club an opportunity to express itself to the fullest ability. The chorus is already drilling and the soloists parts are all but ready. To vary the program of music, a reading or two will augment the numbers and musical circles are looking forward to March 20 when the public will be given an opportunity of hearing the recital.

Pre-eminent in the scheduled events in the post-lenten season in this city stands that O. A. C. annual ball. C. students promise those who may be favored with invitations something especially good.

Beginning a quiet week following a seven-day period of social hilarity the informal party at the Elks hall last Monday evening was greatly enjoyed by about 100 people. It marked the last party of the duo arranged by a group of married men and an especially pleasing feature of the evening's enjoyment was the excellent music.

Tour over District Discloses Good Winter Conditions.

Will French, representing Wadhams & Kerr Bros., wholesale grocers of Portland, returned home last night from an extended trip into the interior of the state. In the interior of his house, Mr. French spoke of the territory as far as Boise and in speaking of the grocery trade says that all throughout the territory business is good, stock doing well and small loss is reported by stockmen. Reports being able to collect enough to meet current bills. Of course the volume of business is not great this time of the year and no extra profits are expected but with the weather breaks to business will not be a rush as to which improved conditions made all through the district.
