"SILVER THREADS" AT THE ISIS

Isis Theatre to Produce Splendid Film at Its Playhouse.

The present generation have still a loving regard for the dear old songs of long ago. Some of those which were so popular when our grandparents were children are even more enchanting today. In none is this exemplified greater than the immortal "Silver Threads Among the Gold." Manager Sherwood struck the right chord in putting on this old time favorite this week and during the rendition of the melody more than one handkerchief stole quickly up to the eye, an apt tribute to the singers as well as the words recalled by the beautiful words. We all know just where it happens to fit into our own particular retrospections and, be it even considered unmanly to have a tear blind the eye would none of us have it otherwise. The "full houses" at the Isis testified their appreciation in no forgettable manner. Tense silence during the singing, and spontaneous outburst of applause at its close demanded a double encore.

Charles E. King, the Isis musical director arranged the song as a novelty for Miss Nellie Garrick, soprano, and Mr. C. P. Ferrin, the Isis tenor. The first two verses were sung by Mr. Ferrin in his pure inimitable style at the end of which and during the hearty applause, all lights in the house were switched off for a few seconds and as they reappeared Miss Nellie Garrick was discovered occupying the singer's stand. It was a pretty chance Miss Garrick then sang a third verse alone and her beautiful voice just captivated the audience and when Mr. Ferrin joined her in the last chorus blending their voices in the beautiful strains. La Grande can assimilate more of this kind of amusement and the Isis will see that the people are not disappointed. Tonight will be the last change to hear this song during the present program.

EXPRESS MANAGER HERE.

General Manager Cowey Spends a Few Minutes Here Inspecting Office.

General Manager Cowey of the entire American Express company was in La Grande for a few minutes this morning, giving the local office a brief inspection during the change of engines to No. 6. Mr. Cowey has been touring the company districts and while here was shown by the site for the new building by Local Agent G. M. Hibbard and expressed his satisfaction at the location.

George Weston, financial manager for the company, with headquarters in Portland, was with Mr. Cowey and will accompany the general manager to the Chicago headquarters.
