"PASSION PLAY" COMING.

Arcade Again Secures Big Attraction as Special Feature.

Always on the lookout for the best that can be got Manager George, local manager of the People's Amusement company, today received a lettergram from Melvin G. Winstock, the manager of the company at Portland, authorizing the publication of the announcement that on the 26th and 27th of April the Arcade theatre will present as a special feature, the special release of the famous Passion Play in three reels of one thousand feet each. The picture is hand colored throughout and employs not less than five thousand people in the cast. The costuming is superb and it is without the most gorgeous religious spectacle ever attempted in motion picturedom. Manager George announces that on this special occasion his entire performance will consist of this picture, previous to which time there will be a special exhibition given to the ministers and religious organizations of the city.

This reverent portrayal of the life and death of the great Savior cannot fail to enlist the emphatic attention of all classes of the community. Manager George also states that notwithstanding the tremendous extra cost of presenting this picture, that there will be no raise in the price of admission, it being the policy of the People's Amusement company not to exact additional tribute from the public but at all times to secure and present to its patrons the very newest and best picture productions.

The Isis Continues Talking.

Richard Harding Davis, the greatest of today's American authors, and a man whose researches into criminal men and their methods have become worldwide has written a story about "The Disreputable Mr. Raegen." He it said first that Mr. Raegen is not wicked, but his being under suspicion with the New York police has a great deal to do with the story. When Mr. Raegen is least suspecting it he becomes the victim of a hardy crook who, by his deft manipulation, places an empty pocket book (from which the roll of bills has been taken) in Mr. Raegen's coat pocket.

The crook gets away with the money until his crookedness overcomes his caution and the inevitable arrest made. Under suspicion of being the actual thief Mr. Raegen suffers arrest, escapes, etc., and finally takes refuge in a room where he receives the salvation of his soul by finding a little child, deserted by its guardians, one of whom is the actual thief first concerned.

How everything is straightened out and the guilty made to pay the penalty can only be seen at the Isis tonight and tomorrow. It is worth seeing. Richard Harding Davis never wrote a better story.

The suffragette picture is still a drawing one and the Latin quotation will be translated in tomorrow's picture advertisement.

Well Known Drama Coming.

For strength and interesting qualities in dramatic form, there is nothing to surpass the coming presentation of the well-known New York success, "The Squaw Man," in which Lee Willard will appear at the Steward tomorrow night.

In writing this play Mr. Edwin Milton Royle, the author, has gone a step farther than most dramatists, and has succeeded in putting together a comprehensive structure and one may travel far to find an equal to it. There is always a strong interest in the war, but few plays have shown that life of the plains of twenty years ago as it really was, with its atmosphere of old heat, strong passions and faithful friendship.

Mr. Lee Willard has succeeded Dustin Farnum in the title role and is peculiarly suited to this character. Human emotion is shown at every turn and yet it is handled so ably that there is not one discordant note to be found at any point. Throughout only absolute strength and virility, together with clean cut human passion and a certain element of self sacrifice upon which the play hinges is to be found. So vital is the tale that runs athwart the stage, that the interest of the spectator is held as by a spell, and the final curtain brings satisfaction to the auditor that is hard to duplicate. It has been said that "The Squaw Man" is the great American play, but that question the audience is left to decide for itself.
