The Isis Easter Program.

Weeks ago Manager Sherwood arranged with the Central Film agency to have a special program of pictures for his patrons during Easter, and the patrons will be delighted with the new offering put on Sunday. The present program is one of the best that has been seen for a long time and shows the management's efforts to be trying all the time to outdo every previous show if such be at all possible. The Isis is getting the best service of pictures that the city has ever known and we commend the enterprise of our local man in that he will stand for nothing but "the" best.

The music at the Isis is always of the best, and local musicians oftentimes attend the theatre when Musical Director King has some picture before him calling for special incidental music features which he calls from the masters old and new. Mr. King always has them ready.

Good music appeals to everybody everywhere and it is predicted that Mr. King's offering of his own arrangement of Ward Stevens' "Christ, the Lord, is Risen Today," will go on record as one of the finest musical treats offered to La Grande since many Easters ago. The arrangement is for three voices, soprano, tenor and baritone, each of which has a solo appointed, the grand finale being taken up in harmony by all voices with full organ accompaniment. Needless to say the excellent trio of voices regularly engaged by the Isis will do full justice to the great setting.

Miss Garrick, Mr. Ferrin and Mr. ... all soloists of known ability and repute, have the parts well in hand and on a rehearsal today one of the best, probably the best, local musical critic had nothing but high commendations for the result achieved. It will be the musical attraction for Easter-Sunday matinee and evening.

Building An Income for the Days When You Can Not be on the Pay Roll.

Have you thought of the time when old age and physical infirmities will cause the man at the desk to say, "Charlie, you have been a faithful man for years and it is with the deepest pain that I tell you old age prevents this company from further employing you unless we reduce you to a minor position."?

For this is what happens to all of us. Age prevents us from retaining highest usefulness. Not one man, but all meet the same conditions.

This being true, friends, what is better than an income for later life?

What is better than being able to say to the wife, "Well, wife, it was fortunate that we invested a few hundred dollars a year when I was able to make money—when I was in my prime and the children were small." It is with such an assurance that the man whose name appears on any company's pay roll can lie down to pleasant sleep and feel that his family is protected.

But what can the small investor buy that is sure to increase in value, and yet have his investment safe?

That is a question which has confronted every man who gets his check. That is a question that the shyster, the crook and the confidence man has taken advantage of for years and years. The stock jobber and the worthless bond seller have played upon this very heartstring to fill their own pockets with wealth from the man who works.

There is one investment which has stood the test of time; that has been solid and firm when all else trembled; that investment is land. When one owns and has title to Mother Earth he has something that only revolution and the dethronement of this republic could make unsafe—either of which is an impossibility in this enlightened age.

But ordinary land does not offer the returns that the small investor is entitled to receive unless that land be located in a fruit growing section and is set to a growing orchard. If his investment is in orchard land in the right locality the investor cannot only be sure of future income but he can also be certain of immense increase in value—a thing that nothing but fruit land today offers in proportion to the investment.

With Orchard property a man does not have to buy a half section to make a living. A few acres not only will care for him and his family but it will make him money besides. It is safe as to crop in this valley and the market is assured.

Then why ponder of what you will do with your savings when at home—right here in Union county—you can own a tract of fruit land, have it cared for, look after it yourself and enjoy seeing the value each day enhance?

This is something for every man on a salary to think about and when you want further information regarding details and the ease of payments call on any of the following parties:
