EDITORIAL ON CHEAP PAVING.

Salem Statesman Editor Object to Being "Stuck" for Double Header Assessments.

The Salem Statesman of April 19th, editorially comments on paving, as follows:

"The writer hereof is to be 'stuck' for some cement paving on Twelfth street, between Bellevue and Mission. If the project of some of the property holders in that district shall be adopted by the Salem city council. And this writer does not like the idea. He believes it will mean a double assessment, within a few years—that the cement paving not being impervious to water (no cement paving anywhere is) it will within a few years break up, under constant travel in the wet season. That when the breaking up commences, it will go quickly. The writer has been 'stuck' before with a double assessment for macadam a few years ago and now hard surface paving. A hard surface pavement should have been selected in the first place, and is cheaper in the long run. It is better all the time. The cement roadway to the postoffice, laid by the government, with very little gravel has begun breaking up. The writer believes there will be a lot of people in Salem a few years hence, who will regret their recent and present activity toward securing this 'cheap' cement paving."

PATSIE HENRY IS COMING

CLEVER SINGER WILL BE WITH BOSTON JUVENILES.

Little Folks Are Making Big Hits Wherever They Appear.

Those who appreciate clean musical comedy will have their opportunity on May 15 when the Juvenile Bostonians will appear at the Steward in the tuneful musical comedy, "The Ransom," a piece which is filled with tinkling songs and bubbling comedy, and is a distinct novelty, in that it is presented by a company composed entirely of girls, ranging from 16 to 18 years of age, who handle their roles in a way that is a revelation to anyone who witnesses the performance for the first time. Miss Patsie Henry, the comedienne of the company, has been drafted from the ranks of vaudeville where she has been scoring tremendously in the larger cities of the east for the past two seasons. It was only the fact that Miss Henry received her early education with this organization and wished a rest from the more strenuous labors of vaudeville, that the Bostonians were able to secure her for a limited engagement this season. In speaking of this clever artiste, the Cleveland Plain Dealer says: "Little Rose Henry's smile is worth the price of admission." Another member who is attracting favorable attention, is Miss Thom Hellen, who recently returned from Germany where she has spent the past two years completing her musical education. Miss Hellen has a pure soprano voice, and renders her songs in a way which gives ample proof that she has received her training under a master. Little Doris Canfield, who plays the part of an English Johnny, is admitted by all to be about the cleverest juvenile comedienne on the American stage today. This little mite is possessed with that inexplicable something which goes to make a born comedian and (without being in any way precocious) contrives to keep the audience in a scream of laughter whenever she is behind the lights.

NICKELS COST A QUARTER.

Counterfeiter Mercifully Stopped in Expensive Crime.

Chicago, May 3.—(Special)—Counterfeiting nickels at a cost of 25 cents each is an industry in Chicago which the government secret service has kindly stopped, for which Andrew Barto, the accused man, may well be glad. According to the testimony of Capt. T. I. Porter, head of the secret service, it required an hour and a half of time to make three lead nickels. At this rate each nickel would have cost a quarter, yet he either had some rosy dreams of fortune by disposing of them at two cents each in bulk or he was a man so determined on being crooked that he would rather lose money at it than be honest. The counterfeiting outfit consisted of a heavy stamping machine, bellows, forge, stamping press and a number of devices for polishing and trimming the coins, all very workmanlike and successful, but expensive in the matter of time. "To make the coin," Captain Porter testified, "Barto first had to cut the nickels from a sheet of lead and then polish the edges for fully 15 minutes by hand. Then he put the unfinished piece on the mold and set it under a heavy weight which he lifted to the ceiling of his den with a hand windlass until he released a catch and dropped the weight on the steel die. If the weight hit accurately the bogus coin was stamped, but he spoiled three out of five."
