LITTLE MISS DORIS CANFIELD.

Clever vaudeville star with Juvenile Bostonians who met unforeseen difficulties with habit-maker.

GREAT TO BE SMALL.

Doris Canfield Meets With Unforeseen Stumbling Blocks.

"It's great to be small, but sometimes it's embarrassing," says little Miss Doris Canfield of the Juvenile Bostonians who will appear in this city May 15, 16 at the Steward.

"I am quite proud of the fact that I'm grown up and am nearly the oldest of the girls," and Miss Canfield drew herself up and tried to look tall in spite of four feet, 11 inches, and 16 years.

"Why only a few weeks ago, when I was ill and had to take a few days lay-off something happened that made me very angry for a moment and yet it really was funny.

"I needed a couple of new traveling gowns, and as I was not ill enough to stay in bed, I found the address of a habit-maker who made a specialty of ready-to-wear dresses. I easily found the place and the woman was most obliging. We looked over quite a number of stunning street gowns until I found two that could be altered to fit me. An assistant took my measure, and the proprietor promised to have them ready the next day. She seemed to hesitate though, and I asked what the matter was.

"She replied that under the circumstances it would be necessary for her to call up my parents and get them to sanction the order. At first I did not see the joke and was very angry. When my proudest air, far better than anything I could do on the stage, I pulled over my pocket book and displayed a roll of bills, probably several hundred dollars. The woman was properly humbled and when I offered to make a deposit, she said something about it not being necessary and when I gave her my name and address she almost fainted. She explained with much stammering and many blushes that she had seen me at the theatre and thought I was a little girl of about ten years.

"Now, I suppose that I ought to have been very much complimented, but I put on my haughtiest air and ordered the gowns completed at once and sent to me. When I got to the hotel I had a good laugh, but honestly, I am somewhat of being 16 that I sometimes feel that I ought to be angry still."

Bright Lines in "The Spendthrift"

What some of the actors say during the production.

"A woman's sphere is first to be a mother--second, to be a good mother. After that she can be a doctor, lawyer, carpenter, society leader or suffragette. But if she isn't a mother first, in a hundred years from now, there won't be any women left to have any spheres." Aunt Gretchen Jans.

"Good mothers don't have to be selfish. After you have lain all through the night with a new-born babe whimpering in your arms, it won't make much difference whether your breakfast table is decorated with carnations or only food. A woman isn't a woman until she is a mother." Aunt Gretchen Jans.

"Having intuition instead of logic, the woman is the better equipped; the man is hampered with rules while the woman can bite, kick, hit below the belt and strike in the breakaways." Phil Cartwright.

"I want to be a benedict while I can still walk to the altar. It's no fun being pushed up the aisle in a roller chair." Monty Ward.

"People in New York live on the high speed. They don't even stop to toot their horns at the crossings." Aunt Gretchen Jans.

"When people get a little money they always want to see other people as unfortunate as possible." Clarice Van Zandt.

This will be said at the Steward Thursday night.

When your feet are wet and cold, and your body chilled through and through from exposure, take a big dose of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, bathe your feet in hot water before going to bed, and you are almost certain to ward off a severe cold. Prescribed by all doctors.
