"LAYING UP TREASURES" PRO-FOUNDED AT SERVICE

Rev. J. D. Gillilan preached the baccalaureate sermon before the high school graduating class and their friends yesterday in the auditorium of the new building. His theme was, "Laying up Treasures." Among other things he said: "Our government is mining and polishing jewels; not only such as are to be seen in the great crown-jewel room in London, but such as are visible in the lives and the character of the men and women who compose our noble company of citizens. Cornelia, the mother of the Gracchi, was once asked to exhibit her treasures, her gems. She led the inquisitive visitor to a side room where lay her two sleeping sons: "These are my treasures," said the proud Roman matron.

"The government is training its young people by means of the most perfect system of education, mentally and morally as well as physically for its future, and thus lays up treasure for its security for all time. Its aim is perfection, the highest type of citizen. There is no public tax so freely given as that which goes for popular education. It is an investment, not a speculation.

"The greatest natural product this world holds is the untutored child; the best artificial creation and finished product is the cultured adult. Without that child foundation, there is no possibility of the proper result.

"Our family is the unit of strength. The state, by its beneficent provisions made and maintained by its compulsory co-educational system is a constant abettor of the family, thus assisting proper parents in laying up permanent treasure.

"The high school of today is the equal of the university of 1800. To that add the academy, the college, the university and the modern equipment for life's greater, universal field is incomparable with anything heretofore possessed in human annals. Daily we are graduating—onward, upward.

"Our education is imperfect, incomplete without character. To character add proper training and the result is most beneficial.

"Education is complete when knowledge, wisdom and culture are symmetrically and permanently combined. The highest culture is obtainable only when the Great Teacher, Jesus Christ, makes the Golden Rule possible in us."

The above is a very rough synopsis of Dr. Gillilan's address which was delivered to an excellent company of people. The Methodist choir ably supported the service, a virile body of capable people under the efficient management of Mrs. Willis.
