AUTO FIRE ENGINES ARE GIVING SATISFACTION.

Georgia and Pennsylvania Towns Use Them With Success and Economy.

The new chemical auto engine of Rome, Ga., is working satisfactorily, and those familiar with the fire engine and insurance situation predict that before many years the auto engines will entirely supplant the horse drawn vehicles. It has been said that when the new auxiliary water main is put in three auto engines could handle the entire town and thus decrease the expense of maintenance.

An early morning fire in the business section of Lyndora, Pa., gave the local firemen their first opportunity to employ the new automobile fire truck in actual service, and that the new machine is all that could possibly be expected is evidenced by the fact that water was being played upon the flames five minutes after the alarm sounded. It is estimated that on stretches of the run a speed of more than sixty miles per hour was attained. The run proves beyond a doubt the excellent worth of the new truck.

CIRCUS PARADE THRILLS

COURSE LINED WITH VISITORS TO THE CITY.

Reports From Tented Arena This Afternoon Indicate Good Features.

Circus day brought hundreds of families to La Grande, regardless of intermittent morning showers. By the time the big Sells-Floto parade of fine horses and many bands had commenced to wend its way along the pavements, the course was lined with spectators, anxious to see the elephants and the other animals, the funny clowns and the gaudy riders.

The parade feature this year is up to the high standard of the company and pleased everyone who saw it.

The big tented arena on the hill was well crowded this afternoon with spectators who witnessed the performance. Soon after the show got under way it was declared that the special features are much better than usual, and a great many business men who could not get away this afternoon are planning on attending this evening because of the reports of exceptionally fine features presented.

Looks Like It.

"Why do you say he is superstitious?" "Who—Brown?" "Yes." "He looks over his right shoulder at the new moon while he rubs hair restorer upon his bald spot."

Luck or Management.

"He isn't a good manager." "Why, I understand that the firm is making money." "Yes. But his partner gets it all."

Some Drawbacks.

"Those were good old days when I was young." "Yes. Who won the baseball championship in 1850?"

THINGS aren't necessarily wrong because they go wrong. Sometimes it is just the going that is bad.

If at first you don't succeed get out an injunction against failure and try again.

If we could have our wishes we would wish we didn't have any wishes.

Don't try to look a gift horse in the mouth. The animal may be vicious.

PRACTICAL POLITICS.

Practical politics must not be construed to mean dirty politics. On the contrary, in the long run the politics of fraud and treachery and foulness is unpractical politics, and the most practical of all politicians is the politician who is clean and decent and upright.

Good can often be done by criticizing sharply and severely the wrong, but excessive indulgence in criticism is never anything but bad, and no amount of criticism can in any way take the place of active and zealous warfare for the right.—Theodore Roosevelt.

DEATH.

Come to the bridal chamber, Death! Come to the mother's when she feels For the first time her firstborn's breath! Come when the blessed seals That close the pestilence are broke And crowded cities wail its stroke! Come in consumption's ghastly form, The earthquake shock, the ocean storm! Come when the heart beats high and warm With banquet song and dance and wine! And thou art terrible! The tear, The groan, the knell, the pall, the bier, And all we know of dream or fear Of agony are thine. —Fitz-Greene Halleck.

Might Consider It. "Would you marry for money?" "Would I?" "Yes." "Well, not unless something better failed to come my way."

Her Preference. "Consistency is a jewel." "You don't say?" "I do." "Well, that may be, but I prefer a pearl any day."

The Exception. "Is marriage a failure?" "Not always." "In what case is it not?" "When a good alimony may be collected."

Can you draw upon the confidence of your friends without precipitating a panic of distrust?

The man who doesn't know enough to come in when it rains is no better than one who did know enough to annex your new silk umbrella.

If you have no strong sense of personal dignity there are lots of things for you to enjoy in this world.

Time flies swiftly, but he doesn't seem to have any use for a parachute.

He is the wise man who keeps his foolishness to himself.

The Winner.

Her ways were mild and simple, And little did she ken, But as she wore a dimple She had her way with men. A smile serene and sunny, A soft, alluring voice, So it was easy money For her to take her choice.

Her head was short on science And long on trashy books, She placed her sole reliance On manners and on looks, She didn't know the table, For weighing coal and stone, Nor was her Latin able To navigate alone;

In cooking and in baking And making apple pies, You didn't find her taking The sole and only prize; But, oh, she was a winner, With honors all unshared, In handing out a dinner Her mother had prepared!

It was not for her learning Or for her common sense That gentlemen were yearning For leave to take her hence, Her dimple, small but busy, That never would behave, Made each admirer dizzy And chained him as a slave.

Different Then.

"Is he conservative?" "So far as he and his purse are concerned, yes." "Is that all?" "No. He is plenty radical when it comes to dealing with his neighbors' affairs."
