He let Baker tie the score and booted a couple, but he figured at the end by headwork, in breaking up the game. Childers is seldom off though, and he redeemed his fielding by a hit and that 12th inning noodle work. McDonald ran into two double plays with lightning rapidity. He in a clever kid, fast as they make them and will fit into the field well. Bradley got the brunt of the fielding and did it exceptionally well. It was Bradley who most of all helped McInnis hold Baker down. Kall on first, Matthews, the new man in right, Proe in center, each got catches when hits meant runs. Conley worked like a trooper and though in the heat of the excitement—and it was hot—he made one or two bad throws his arm prevented stolen bases in fine shape. Owned Baker After Game. Baker's audience were courteous throughout to the visitors and when they come to La Grande next Sunday behooves La Grande to do the same.

JNO. S. HODGIN, Referee in Bankruptcy. June 5, 1911. (All claims must be verified according to bankruptcy forms before filing.)

LONG CONTEST EXCITING

McINNIS ALL GOOD AND SUPPORT ALMOST GILT EDGED.

Stone, With Good Support, Hero of Baker Aggregation Again. "Heck" McInnis was all to the good yesterday and won a 12 inning game from Baker after the hardest struggle that has characterized a ball game in this section in many years, making six games La Grande has annexed to one loss. With almost gilt edged support behind him McInnis wormed out of holes and by the finest class of pitching he has ever done with a La Grande uniform, managed to carry away a contest in which heartache and exultations were mingled with more spice and variations than it has been the lot of nearly 800 fans to see in years. A whole lot of La Grande fans didn't join the excursion which cost the ball team some extra money and missed a game which in history will be antedated.

La Grande had two new men. McDonald a shrimp in size, but greased lightning on his feet and with a style of play something like the nifty Horton who played with La Grande last year, won a warm home with La Grande fans. His work was stellar in fielding especially and La Grande has a stronger infield today than she ever had. Matthews took everything that came to him in right field and lammed out the hit that took the money. From the first ball thrown to the very end of the 12 innings interest was keyed up to such a pitch that it was at the breaking point and the excruciatingly painful tension worked on the fans' and fenettes' nerve terribly.

Baker played better ball than she had done so far this year and Stone, that mountain of baseball, was all to the good. He struck out 17 men as to McInnis' 10 but in no other respect was La Grande bested anywhere. The game was so close and so exciting that it was simply terrible. The only thing to mar the long-winded affair was rag chewing in the ninth when protests and counter protests were filed against Ferguson's decisions at critical moments but the protests were withdrawn later.

La Grande had about 200 supporters on the ground and the whole of Baker was too small entirely for them after the game. How Scores Were Made. Childers, leading off for La Grande, hit the first ball over and took two bases, being sacrificed to third by McDonald, La Grande's diminutive shortstop. Jackson a minute later let in Childers by an overthrow to second. Proe really struck out but the catcher dropped the ball and when Jackson threw to first it went high, sending Proe on to third base. From there he scored on another wild throw to third. Bradley and Matthews struck out retiring the side. When Baker came up in the first inning Hogoboom went out, Bradley to Kall, Goodman fanned and when Jackson hit to Childers, the latter overthrew Kall. Jackson was scored when Owens got a clean hit, and though he got to third Stone went out. Childers to Kall, retiring the side. The next run made was in the eighth inning when, for the only perlod of the game, La Grande was slightly ruffled. Pugh went out McGinnis to Kall and West got the second hit for Baker that game. Hartley bounded one in front of McInnis who threw West out at second, thereby leaving Hartley up standing at first, he stole second and started for third on a passed ball and Childers and Conley were jointly to blame for the score that followed. Childers was asleep at the post and by the time he got over to the bag Conley let loose and threw wild, the ball going into the left garden and Hartley came home mid an ear-ringing noise.

La Grande got a man over in the 12 inning and the teams might have been playing yet but for a mutty, block headed performance by Baker. Both teams had settled down and there was no reason why the game should not have gone on. Proe hit Stone's offering, being first up, but he went out at second when Bradley laid one down that gave him first on a fielder's choice. Matthews, followed Bradley and got the first hit of the game and sent over the winning run Bradley, scoring from second; the hit was timely and saved La Grande defeat.

Jackson went out, when Baker came to bat, McDonald to Kall. Owen led off with a corking two bagger and went to third on a minor error. Then came the fool play. Stone was at bat and nearly always sure of getting on, yet with only one down, Owens ran boldly toward home. Childers had caught Baker's verbal instructions and after tipping McInnis off, waited for developments, and when Owens took a long lead, Heck threw to third and Childers whipped it to Conley where Owens went out, though had he hit the grit would have been safe a mile. La Grande danced the pow wow. Stone struck out thoroughly disgusted with the play which prevented the score being tied, no doubt and continuing the game.
