

The Isthmian THEATRE

THE THEATRE OF QUALITY.
Bert M. Sherwood, Proprietor and Manager.

"Easter Bables" ... Vitagraph
One of the Vitagraph company's specialties. A pretty juvenile picture of childish belief, innocence and simplicity. Fathers and mothers bring your children tonight to see this picture. They will be vitally interested and you will be tickled.

"The Quarrel on the Cliff" ... Edison
A great picture with tremendously thrilling situations.

"The Trading Stamp Mania" ... Pathe
What would you think if your wife had the trading stamp mania so badly that she bought a coffin for you so as to get the last gaze of her book filled. See judge for yourself.

Illustrated song—"When the Old Mill Wheel is Turning" tonight, sung by Mr. Ferrin.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN H. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

MANY men would be entirely willing to pay their debts if they could spare the money from their current expenses.

The big stick offers the only kind of argument that some people will lend an ear to.

Pride may warm the cold and feed the hungry, but it won't pay either the tailor or the grocer.

Sometimes we feel so smart that we act silly.

The things that you didn't intend to do generally are you ahead of the things that you did mean to do.

Although many misfortunes are singular, they are said never to come singly.

Women may be alike, but on acquaintance every one of them turns out different.

It is easier for a spendthrift to make friends than to keep them.

When a man isn't busy paying his wife's bills he is engaged in guessing what will happen next.

It is easy to be interested if the subject matter affects you favorably.

Marrying isn't so bad, but staying married or unmarried is sometimes difficult.

In the case of the con man seeing is pretty certain to be deceiving.

Feeling Big.
I met my old friend Reggie Jones. Who stily dropped the hint That he would like a hundred bones. As though I were a mint. It sort of dazed me for a spell. For I had mighty few. But for the compliment I fell And bought the drinks for two.

I met a man named William Black Upon a busy street. He stily slapped me on the back And trod upon my feet. "We'll need a president next fall," He said: "the man you are." I heard ambition's feeble call And bought him a cigar.

I met a lady dressed in style Mixed in the busy throng. She turned on me her latest smile And said: "My, you're so strong!" Her baggage, that would fill a shelf, I carried with delight And made a pack horse of myself To prove that she was right.

And that's the way with any gent, As careful ones may note. Just toss a little compliment And he will be the goat. The things that money will not land With taffy you may get. He likes to hear his praises and Will pay the price, you bet.
