VICTIM KNOWN BY WOMAN

FURTHER DETAILS COME TO LIGHT AT MILTON.

Frightful Tragedy There Two Days Since Partially Explained.

Pendleton, June 16. — (Special) — Newspapers here last night shed more light on the recent tragedy at Milton. That Joe Harper, murdered yesterday by Mrs. Nannie Myrtle Kyle at Milton, told an untruth on his death bed when he declared he knew his slayer only as a passenger on his car, is the belief of many Milton and Walla Walla acquaintances of both parties today.

Instead, it is said that Harper's failure to fulfill a pledge to the woman that if she obtained a divorce he would do likewise so that they could marry, provoked her to the spectacular murder and suicide of yesterday.

That the crime was fully premeditated and not the result of an insane hallucination, as originally supposed, seems likely also in the face of evidence that the woman remained up the entire night preceding the double tragedy, writing three letters to persons as yet unknown and sending her 13-year-old son to the drug store for carbolic acid with which she said she wished to doctor an injured foot.

Intended Suicide.

If, as has been commonly reported, the dead woman was in a delicate condition and Harper, as has also been said, was responsible, this unquestionably furnished the motive. It is presumed that Mrs. Kyle originally intended to commit suicide, but she later determined to take Harper with her to eternity.

Joe Harper, the victim of the Kyle woman, according to the Milton Eagle, which showed commendable newspaper enterprise by publishing an extra edition within an hour after the double tragedy, was generally regarded as a popular official. He was the brother of Tom Harper, who also ran on the Interurban, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Harper of the state line neighborhood. He was married and had a son, Thomas, about 5 years old. Mrs. Kyle had been married about 13 years, obtaining her divorce in Pendleton last month.

Mother in Asylum.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Ceella Peterson of Helix and Mrs. John Clay, who was last heard from at Spokane. Her mother, Mrs. John Burns, is said to be in the asylum at Salem.

Not only did she plan her own self-destruction after having taken the life of Joe Harper, but she made careful preparations so that her death would be certain. If bullets had failed to end her life she would undoubtedly have resorted to poison.

The revolver with which she committed the double tragedy was of the Eyer Johnson make and .38 caliber and had been purchased together with six cartridges the night before. Two of the cartridges were found in her hand bag after her death. Besides securing the revolver, she had sent her 13-year-old son to the drug store the night before to secure a trial of carbolic acid with which she undoubtedly intended to complete her self-destruction if the bullets failed.

Motive Only Surmised.

The motive of the terrible double tragedy is still clouded and will probably never be entirely cleared. That there was some degree of intimate relationship between the two victims seems indisputable and yet if there was any scandal connected with this relationship, it was not widely known, for the dead woman bore a good reputation among her neighbors.

J. N. York of Dry Creek, for whom her former husband was building a house when the divorce was granted, states that he attempted at that time to smooth matters over but was convinced that the wife was too well acquainted with Conductor Harper.

Robert Storie, at whose home Mrs. Kyle lived during the past ten months, is unable to throw much light on the matter. He declares that several weeks ago she told him that Mr. Harper was too bold. Yesterday morning, he says, at 6:35 she called to him asking the time and immediately departed from the house without a word of explanation. As she had been employed at a packing house in Freewater for some time, fired four times, and then suicided. She fell backward in the arms of E. L. Holt, who was in the car and died after gasping but twice.

Looked to Heaven.

She walked rapidly to the waiting place for the cars which is the fountain on Main street. People there declare that as she approached she was seen looking to heaven and muttering to herself but nothing else strange was noticed in her demeanor. She entered the car with Mrs. J. D. Bird, while the conductor was engaged in turning over the seats for the return trip.

Fired Four Times.

When his back was within a few feet of her she drew a revolver and fell backward in the arms of E. L. Holt, who was in the car and died after gasping but twice.

Harper was placed aboard the car and rushed to Walla Walla; but was told by physicians that he had but one chance in a hundred to live. "Oh, isn't it awful," he moaned and all the way to Walla Walla pleaded with the doctors to end his misery with chloroform. He died at 11:25 without having thrown any light on the cause of the tragedy. Several times he said:
