HUGE RECTANGLE IN HEART OF LONDON CLOSED TO TRAFFIC AND BIG HOTELS SUFFER

London, June 21.—Anticipation of the climax of tomorrow's coronation, 2,000 ambulances, hundreds of physicians and nurses and emergency hospitals have been engaged to care for casualties which are considered inevitable. Preparations are made against accidents in case any of the grand stands collapse, or fire breaks out.

Precautions were redoubled today to guard the visiting royalty. All houses along the line of march were inspected by Scotland Yard to see no plots or bombs existed. Tonight the big gates will be closed and a rectangle two and one half miles across and three miles long in the central part of London—where the ceremonies occur tomorrow—will be closed to traffic for two days. This includes the big hotels, and business houses. None will be allowed to enter or depart from the rectangle save those with passes.

It is expected that the embargo against trade in the rectangle will cause a serious inconvenience in the hotels as the congestion of traffic was so heavy last night that provisions to last through the two days were not all received and only a little more could be secured today.

The coronation robes, jewels and other regalia were carried today from Buckingham palace to Westminster abbey. They are under special guard of the king's life guards.

London, June 21.—The coronation of King George and Queen Mary is the one topic uppermost in the minds of the people of London today. For while the brilliant ceremony will be one of world-wide interest, it is in London that the great and glorious scenes associated with the event will be carried on.

London tomorrow will be the scene of such magnificent pageantry and representation of power and might as will eclipse the glories of the jubilee celebrations of 1887 and 1897 and the coronation of Edward VII in 1902, and will provide for all who have the privilege of seeing it, a vision of splendor unequalled in recent times. King and courtier, military and civil officials, lord mayor and citizens, have all, in their respective spheres, concentrated their efforts in the welding together of the multifarious parts in a pageant which will lack nothing in its wealth of color and brilliancy.

The Coronation Processions.

With that willingness which has ever characterized the king and queen to study, as far as possible, the wishes of this loyal subjects, arrangements have been made for two royal processions through the streets of the metropolis. The first will take place tomorrow when their majesties go from Buckingham palace to Westminster abbey to be crowned, and the second on Friday when they proceed from the palace to the city proper, where they will be received by the lord mayor and corporation in state. This will mean a drive through the center of London, and then, in order that all classes may have an opportunity of taking part in the celebrations, their majesties will cross London bridge and return on the south side of the Thames, passing through some of the meaner streets of the metropolis. To nine-tenths of the people of London seeing the coronation will mean merely seeing the great procession of Friday.

To the Abbey and Return.

For the coronation ceremony tomorrow the king and queen will go to Westminster abbey by the shortest route from Buckingham palace, through the hall, the archway and the courtyard of the Horse Guards, Whitehall, Parliament street and Parliament square. Returning after the ceremony, which will last about two hours, a longer route will be taken, by way of Charing Cross, Cockspur street, Pall Mall, St. James street, Piccadilly, Hyde Park corner, and Constitution hill. But few persons, in comparison with the enormous crowds now in London, will be able to get a good view of tomorrow's processions. The most of the great stands that have been erected have been placed on the route of Friday's procession, which is expected to afford a more elaborate spectacle than that of tomorrow. Patient folks who rise early may secure standing room along the street curbs, but they will have to stand on tiptoe to see over the bearskin hats of the Foot Guards, tall fellows, all of them, even if they endure the hours of tedious waiting and have the luck to retain their places.

Many Royal Visitors.

The coronation has attracted to London more royal visitors than has ever been seen here at one time before. In the state rooms of St. James' palace tonight the Duke of Connaught gives a dinner in their honor. One of the most distinguished of the foreign delegations is that from Japan, which includes Prince Fushimi, Admiral Togo and General Nogai. Prince Henry of Prussia and his wife, who represent the German emperor and empress, are doubly related to the king, through Prince Henry's mother, Empress Frederick and Princess Henry's mother, Princess Alice. The crown prince and princess of Roumania are well known in England. The crown princess is King George's first cousin and spent her childhood in England. She will be perhaps the handsomest of the foreign princesses attending the ceremony.

Duchess of Aosta a Beauty.

The Duchess of Aosta, wife of the heir presumptive to the throne of Italy, will be the crown princess of Roumania's chief royal rival in the matter of good looks. She was married, when Helene d'Orleans, to the Duke of Aosta, at Kingston on the Thames, and she made her social debut at a Marlborough house garden party, so a visit to England is rather like a home coming to her. Other interesting foreign visitors here for the ceremony tomorrow are Prince Henry of the Netherlands, the crown prince of Serbia, Prince Yusuf Izzed-Din of Turkey, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria, the crown prince of Denmark, the crown prince and princess of Sweden, and Prince and Princess Johann Georg of Saxony.

Will Leave Tomorrow.

Mrs. E. B. Corbin and daughter, Miss Jessie, of Mound City, Kansas, who have been visiting Judge and Mrs. Knowles for several days, will leave in the morning for Portland.

Special Musicals Meeting.

There will be a call meeting of the Lyle Tuesday Musicals tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 for the purpose of deciding upon the course of study for the coming year. Would request all members to be present.

PRIESTESS TRUE TO REVEALER ON STAND

WOULD WILLINGLY DIE AND SUFFER TO AVOID ACCUSING ACCUSED LEADER.

SPURNS FATHER'S PLEA

Mildred Bridges on Stands Tells of Fanatical Allegiance to Evelyn See—Dodges Issue when Asked Regarding Relations With Leader—Trouble Brews Between the Two High Priestesses.

Chicago, June 21.—"They may crucify me on the cross of public opinion; place on my head a crown of condemnation; thrust my sides with spears of malice but they cannot force from me a single word hurting Mr. See. He is my light." This was the statement made by Mildred Bridges, high priestess of the "absolute" cult of See before she resumed the stand to testify in the case which the state has brought against him on statutory charges in which the girl is mentioned.

Before the trial was resumed today Stephen Bridges, her father, pleaded with her to desert See. She refused.

That there has been a quarrel between the "two lights" was seen today when Mildred snubbed Mona Reese. Mildred admitted she believed See's teaching, but she could not remember any religious rites practiced at the "junior commonwealth" that were damaging; she could not recall reading a passage in the "book of light of my house; the house of the light of my house; the house of the Lord, and she shall not depart therefrom."

She cleverly parried any questions concerning her relations with See.

Girl Is Trapped.

Later in the examination Miss Bridges was trapped when she identified a letter as her own hand writing. After she denied she ever called to see "her husband," a letter which had been taken from his safe was read which follows in part: "I feel that I have now entered into the true spirit of wifehood. I feel we are on a truer basis than ever before. From this day I will pick up my life to enter into a spirit of wifehood and be a true wife. No matter where you may be, always remember there is a little girl at home loving you. Your girl wife, Evelyn, I love you."

The state now hopes to break down the witness and force her to give the details of the "rites" practiced in the "commonwealth."

During the recess See entered the witness room and began talking to Mona Reese and Mildred. Mr. Bridges saw him and chased him from the room.

Asked why she wrote to See, "I love you," she replied "I do love him as God has man. I have every confidence in him as such. He is the only God man."

YOUNG HAVEMEYER TESTIFIES

Tells Committee Combination Aided Public More Than Companies.

Washington, June 21.—When the Hardwick sugar investigating committee resumed today Horace, son of the late sugar fig. Havemeyer, was recalled. He testified that a "reasonable combination" was a positive benefit to the public.

Young Havemeyer declared that the merger of the National Sugar Refining company of New York and the Yonkers refineries into a National Sugar Refining company was more beneficial to the public than to the company.
