Two Breakfasts In Berlin.

There is not much to be got by the -simply a cup of coffee and a roll or two-but along about 11 o'clock everybody starts for the cafe for a "second breakfast," generally a meat or a cheese sandwich. He makes up for his light regimen at the 1 o'clock Mittagstich of soup, meat, vegetables, preserved fruits, pudding and wine or beer at discretion. Then he does not hasten back to business, but plays or jokes with his children fifteen or twenty minutes, rests or sleeps for thirty more, has a chat, a cup of coffee and a cigar and returns to business at 3 o'clock again, perhaps to work until 8 or 9 in the evening. Then he comes home again to a supper of cold meats, salads, cheese and beer, which will probably be followed by more beer as friends drop in to smoke the black German cigars and play "skat" or "sixty-six."-Joe Mitchell Chapple in National Magazine.

Seven Bells. Everybody who knows anything about nautical matters understands the method of keeping time at seaeight bells every four hours. From 6 to 8 in the evening is the second dogwatch, but on British ships seven bells (half past 7) of the second dogwatch are never struck. All other ships, even the American, strike these bells. During the Napoleonic wars there was a great mutiny in the British navy. The crews of the fleets lying at Spithead and the Nore agreed to rise simultaneously against their officers. The signal agreed upon was seven bells of the second dogwatch. The mutiny actually began at the arranged time, but failed, the ringleaders being executed. Ever since then seven bells of the second dogwatch has bever been struck on British ships, naval or mercantile.

Ways of the Labrador Indians. The Labrador Indians when on s hunt stalk on in advance of the train with their arms, while the women, heavily laden with provisions and means of shelter, drag along slowly after. When the lords and masters begin to think of food time or wish in any way to leave some guide as to their progress for the squaws they thrust an upright spear or stick in the snow and draw in the snow the exact fine of the shadow then cast. The women, tolling painfully along, note the spear and the progress of the shadow and know closely the difference of time. They know, too, wheth er they dare to linger for a few minutes' rest or if they must hastily catch the stick or spear and hurry on

The Norman's Coronation.

A peculiar incident happened at the crowning of William the Conqueror. the new monarch promised to protect | 8,954. Endorsed Feb. 16, 1910. the church and to execute judgment and mercy, the archiasnop put the Will ye have this prince to be your A clamorous response of assent star-

The English, hearing of the plunder, rushed out of church. The hishops and clergy who remained were in such confusion that they could hardly go through with the act of crowning William heard the tumult, but could not conjecture the cause and sat trem bling at the foot of the altar. No great mischief was done by the fire. but the occurrence laid the foundation
