SAN JOSE AVIATION MAD WHEN WALSH FLIES

Charles F. Walsh, the famous birdman who is to appear here on July 8th and 9th, drives the San Jose public mad. The following is what the San Jose Mercury has to say about Ely and Walsh:

"San Jose is aviation mad. Its first real meet proved an unqualified success. Over 5,000 people saw the birdmen dare the air lanes above the valley at the driving park. The rest of San Jose caught a glimpse of Eugene Ely as he winged his way in a great circle over the heart of the city and heard the hum and whirr of his motor. Edanvale, Evergreen, East San Jose and College park saw the aviators yesterday. Walsh paid a call to the farmers to the south and east; Ely visited San Jose though he could not be induced to stop. Walsh skimmed along over the foothills and orchards, possibly with an eye to investment. Ely seemed more interested in marts and residences though he passed so high that he was almost indistinguishable against the sky.

"In spite of his world-wide reputation for caution, Walsh was by far the most reckless of the two yesterday. At least it seemed so to the hundreds who watched his turns and dives with breathless suspense. Ely mounted much higher than did his partner and made several beautiful and dangerous glides. He did not attempt to break altitude records, attaining a maximum height of about 2,500 feet. Walsh several times skimmed so close to the grand stand that its occupants were frightened."

"On his long flight the tail of Walsh's biplane loosened up and twisted so that he was unable to keep his plane on an even keel. He had to constantly elevate his planes and even then had great difficulty in keeping up.

The aviation meet in this city yesterday was without doubt the greatest sensation San Jose people have ever witnessed."

The Isis Has It Again.
Last night Manager Sherwood learned that there was just one chance for him to get the beautiful picture just put out by the Edison company entitled "In the Baggage Coach Ahead." He immediately wired the film exchange to secure and it arrived on No. 6 this morning. To a private view of this reel he invited a number of people and their expressions of the beauty of the production were unanimous. The Edison company have even excelled themselves.

This beautiful film will be shown at the Isis tonight, Wednesday and Thursday.

This film portrays the story of the well known ballad which enjoyed great popularity some years ago.

It shows a young man riding in a Pullman and trying to quiet a child whom he carries. His efforts are unsuccessful, to the great annoyance of the rest of the passengers, some of whom have retired, and when asked by one of the passengers why he doesn't take the child to its mother, he sadly informs her that she is "in the baggage coach ahead."

This at once arouses the sympathy of his fellow passengers and he proceeds to tell the story of his few short years of happiness.

Beginning with his first meeting with his pretty bride, he tells of the springtime wooing, her final shy acceptance of him and his start for the west, where his business calls him, there to build their little home. At last the home is ready, he sends for her, and her supreme joy on entering their home more than compensates for their short separation. They continue supremely happy, a child is born to them, the pride and joy of their little home. Suddenly, one day, a shadow falls across their rosy pathway; the little wife and mother is taken seriously ill and passes away after a very short illness, leaving her husband grief stricken.

As we fade back to the Pullman at the end of the story we see that one sympathetic lady has taken charge of the child and, as the man breaks down in his grief, she carefully takes the now sleeping baby to her stateroom. One by one the other passengers move quietly away in silent sympathy, leaving him alone with his great sorrow.

"The film is an artistic creation. The illusion of the story told is handled in a new and effective manner and while the subject will bring many a tear, there is nothing in the least harrowing about it.

MINES ARE RICH IN SILVER

WILLIAM MUIR FROM HEAD OF GRANDE RONDE IS IN CITY.

Looks for Activity in Old Diggings This Season, He Says.

That mines at the head of the Grande Ronde are rich in silver and galena, along with a good showing of gold and some other minerals, and that activity will be noticeable this season, is the belief of William Muir, the old time mine owner of the upper country. Mr. Muir arrived in La Grande last night and will be here all of today attending to matters of business. He does not get to La Grande very often but always claims this city as his home town.

He looked around the town this morning and was surprised at the improvement going on, expressing his belief that La Grande was taking on a quickstep that looked good to him. He has been in the mountains of the Grande Ronde for about 17 years and has abiding faith in the future mineral output of that region.

When the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League held its first real convention in Boston, in 1895, it had but two-score unions. Today it has more than 500, located in 395 cities and towns of 45 states, the District of Columbia and in Canada. The membership at the time of the last convention at Minneapolis, two years ago, was 37,444. Today it is 42,651, and steady progress is made at every point.

At a recent meeting of the United Hebrew Trade in Manhattan it was decided to aid the tailors in the organizing campaign they are now carrying on to get all the trade in the country into the union as a preliminary preparation for a general strike in 1912.

WANTED—All the boys in La Grande between 10 and 16 years old to join the Boys' Savers' club. Call at the laundry and I will tell you all about it. A. B. Cherry, mgr. Cherry's New Laundry.

An old professor in our dental college once said to me, "Don't hurt your patients, they will appreciate your care in doing your dental work." That motto has always been in my mind and I have always been on the lookout for remedies and methods that will make dental work easier for my patients. Recently I have been enabled to get a local anaesthetic which makes extracting practically painless when properly used. There is a difference between advertising painless extracting and really doing it.
