

MAGUIRE AND GODS ARRIVE

BODY TORN WITH THE HORNS OF JUNGLE BEASTS.

EXPLORE LADEN WITH FIRST HAND AFRICAN LORE

Audience Tonight Will Be Taken Over the African Continent With the Man Who Followed in Tracks of Stanley—Went Over the Roosevelt Hunting Grounds and Knows Africa by Heart.

Seven years in darkest Africa produced Gabriel Maguire as he was this morning when he arrived in La Grande to appear before the chautauqua tonight with snakeskins and gods trinkets and idols gleaned by costly experience in the Congo country—produced him as he is, his tongue gub with first-hand knowledge of African heathen rites, custom and geography and his physical body scarred with wounds not long since healed that are life-long paranthesis which accentuate his narrow escapes with jungle beasts. Even though he was disembowled by an enraged buffalo and because of remoteness from medical care washed the wounds and bowels in a weak solution of carbolic acid and allowed healing by granulation, even though he carries a gruesome scar today that must be protected by belt and pad, even though his back is torn horribly by the snout of an enraged rhinoceros—he is today able to picture by the word method—albeit his rich Irish brogue crops out—scenes from the darkest Africa as no other man can. He saw the Congo immediately after that intrepid explorer, Stanley, had come down, and therefore can picture it as he saw it before other white men changed even slightly it may be, the customs and heathenish rites of Africa.

Same Trip Tonight.

Tonight at the chautauqua grounds Rev. Doc. Maguire, explorer, humorist and god totter that he is, will take his audience through the same jungles, the same streams, the same hospitable rites and land them at Zanzibar without actually having to forego the terrible hardships which he did.

In an interview today he told of the heathen customs, of the terrible slavery of the female, of witchcraft as a practice, of a score of other intensely interesting things, but to repeat them would rob him of his thunder tonight—at least lessen the interest in his chain of discussion.

Tonight his audience will start up the Congo to Yellala Falls. From there, supplied with a capita (interpreter) the crowd and lecturer start cross country by canoe, by caravan and lastly as the jungle thickens, by single file on foot to the capital of the Maduda tribe of Africans. There the crowd will first eat the disk of peace, exchange human blood, buy a house for a knife worth six cents, then a 10-acre ranch overlooking the capitol for an eight-cent knife, and then will come a minute description of marriage, funeral, religious rites that will picture in a most realistic manner the conditions as they exist.

He came with his bags and baggage—the gruesome snake skin, the gods, the idols, the trinkets that his baggage contains will be strewn on tables before the audience bringing vastly nearer the topics which he discusses. Eventually the audience is landed at Zanzibar safe and sound and much the wiser.

Truly Gabriel Maguire is an explorer among explorers. Space and time alone forbid elucidation on his experience which perchance he may not have time to dwell on tonight. He ranks with the foremost explorers that have pierced the dangerous, fever-laden, beast-infested heathen land of the African jungle.

HOKE SMITH SEEKS TOGA

GOVERNOR NOW TOUTED AS A LIKELY CANDIDATE.

Terrell Seeks Re-Nomination for Six Year Term—Contest Warn.

Atlanta, Ga., July 6.—The senatorial situation is attracting much attention with the near approach of the date when the Georgia legislature will choose a successor to Senator Terrell in the United States senate. The balloting will begin next Tuesday and all signs point to a spirited contest. Senator Terrell, who was appointed to fill the seat of the late Senator Clay until the legislature could choose his successor, is a candidate for election to the full term of six years. The leading candidate, however, appears to be Hoke Smith, who was secretary of the interior under President Cleveland and who has just been inaugurated for the second time as governor of Georgia. Governor Smith, it is understood, has long aspired to take a seat in the United States senate and his supporters are now preparing to make a strong fight for his election. On the other hand, the anti-Smith element, which includes many politicians who are prominent in all sections of the state, will leave no stone unturned to prevent his election. A number of other candidates for the toga are receiving more or less attention. One of those whom it is believed could make a formidable showing should he be decided to make an active fight is Pleasant A. Stovall, the Savannah editor. "Tom" Watson, the former populist leader; W. A. Covington, one of the authors of the state prohibition law, and several others have announced their candidacies.

EX-GOVERNOR HANLY A BIG MAN

It would seem unnecessary for the Evening Observer to reiterate the statement that Gov. Hanly, who delivered the Fourth of July oration here, is a big man, but such is demanded in the face of the attempt to belittle a character such as he is.

We want to say to the people of Eastern Oregon who assembled here on the Fourth that no such man has ever made a speech in La Grande in the past ten years, and doubtful it is if there has ever been a speech delivered within the corporate limits that any way compared with the magnificent effort.

That speech alone, with nothing whatever following it, was worth spending the day in La Grande. Opportunity for hearing men who have been seasoned with national experience and who have proven their character, is seldom oered in this interior country. You say, "There should have been a parade instead of paying Hanly the price for making that speech?" Then, you should be pitied. You put momentary pleasure against learning; feasting the eye for a second against a life-time of knowledge delivered in a concise and understandable manner?

No, we cannot believe that the people of Eastern Oregon choose to put so low a price on learning, on experience, on citizenship. That one speech was worth every parade, every greased pig, every balloon ascension this city has pulled off since the day of incorporation.

Just think a little bit before passing judgment on the efforts of one who has worked to gain knowledge; don't enlist yourself among those who choose to look at paper flowers and clowns rather than obtain thoughts from a master mind. Don't do it, for the day will come when experience ripens you so that you will remember how foolish was your attitude.

The machine, closely bundled into casings, does not occupy a great deal of space and by tomorrow noon will have been placed piece to piece so that its working principles can be seen. It was planned to have the machine in working order by this evening but this was found impossible, because of the delay in reaching La Grande this morning.

Mr. Walsh, the man who does the actual manipulation of the machine, is coming Friday morning and will spend the day here acquainting himself with conditions and giving the final touches to his machine before leaving, terra firma Saturday.

He said after he arrived Miss Graham, revolver in hand, jumped into the apartment and told him to sign a retraction concerning things he had said of herself and family. Then Miss Conrad demanded $25,000. They both threatened to kill him. Then he grappled and shot and the fight started which ended in the arrests.

He said, after he grabbed Miss Graham she yelled, "Go, get your gun, you said you would kill him if I failed." The Conrad girl then got the gun, shot him in the ankle, and then I managed to get Miss Graham between and we rolled out the door."

DUBLIN AWAITS ROYAL GUESTS

ORANGEMEN ANGERED AT TOUR OF THEIR MAJESTIES.

PETITION KING AND QUEEN TO CHANGE THEIR PLANS

Plans Now Call for Arrival of King and Queen of England at Dublin Saturday Morning and to Remain Four Days—Royal Purple to Be Worn by Guests While Going Through Landing Ceremony.

Dublin, July 6.—All Dublin, and in truth, all Ireland, is on the qui vive in anticipation of the coming of the king and queen. Crowds are pouring in from all points, and it is estimated that the normal population of Dublin, about 350,000, will have swollen to 1,000,000 by Saturday, the day on which their majesties will make their entry into the city.

The royal visit to Dublin will extend over four days. The official arrangements are calculated to keep their majesties busy almost from the hour of their arrival to their departure. The day of departure, by the way, falls on July 12, the day the Ulster Orangemen hold their great annual celebration. Some of the leaders among the Orangemen have not been slow to take offense at the king departing from the country on that anniversary, and have petitioned him instead to visit Ulster's capital, Belfast. As all the arrangements for the royal visit were concluded months ago, however, it was impossible to make any change in the itinerary. Furthermore, it would not be at all expedient for the king to visit Belfast on Orangemen's day as it would almost surely provoke rioting between the Orangemen and the nationalists.

The king and queen are expected to arrive at Kingston on the royal yacht Victoria and Albert early Saturday morning. They will land at the Victoria wharf at about 10:30, and will be received by the lord lieutenant and countess of Aberdeen. At the Dublin city limits they will be met by the lord mayor and council in their scarlet robes, and mace bearers in uniform of blue and silvers. Soldiers will line the road as a guard of honor, while behind them will be cordons of police, lancers and militia.

On their arrival at Dublin castle the king and queen will be received by the lord lieutenant bearing the sword of state. The apartment which their majesties occupy at the castle have been completely refurbished and redecorated for the royal visit. A new and much-needed supper room has been built at the back of the state apartments. The additions and alterations have allowed a room with a beautifully decorated ceiling, which hitherto was not available, to be added to the viceroy's residential apartments. During the royal visit it will be utilized as a small dining room.

On the afternoon of their arrival their majesties will leave the castle and proceed to the Royal College of Science for the opening ceremony. Afterward they will be escorted to Trinity college, where an address will be read to which his majesty will make a reply.

Leaving Trinity college the king and queen will go to the Phoenix race course, and will drive thence to the viceregal lodge. The first day of their visit in Dublin will conclude with a state banquet at the castle, for which invitations have been issued to several hundreds of the officials and best-known residents of the Irish capital.

A full program has been prepared for Sunday, beginning with the attendance of the king and queen and their suite at the service in St. Patrick's cathedral, followed by a visit to the Artane Industrial school. Later in the day their majesties will inspect
