RILEY READER PRAISES CITY

KNEW LA GRANDE WHEN OLD UNIVERSITY STOOD HERE.

Man Who Out-Riley's Riley Has Long Career in the West.

Judge J. D. Fenner of Boise arrived this morning to fill a Riley recital engagement with the La Grande Chautauquans this evening. He is an old newspaper man himself, having edited the Idaho Daily Statesman way back in '88. He also founded and edited the paper known as The Capital News of Boise. He was secretary to Senaamong other things the judge said: "Yes, your city is a most delightful surprise to me. Of course, you young fellows don't know much about old La Grande, but I passed through here when it was a very small village, way back in '77, on my way to Walla Walla where I was principal of public schools there for a while. Then the Methodists had a little shack for a church and the Blue Mountain university was in its glory. By the way, I came near being the president of that institution once; I was down for it but the Grangeville people, where I had gone to establish an academy would not let me off. But I have a distinct remembrance of La Grande as it was in '77, and in contrast to the present beautiful and enterprising city I am glad that, to use a Riley expression, "the times air not jest as they used to be." I knew some of the old timers here, but I reckon "the mossy marbles rest" on their folded hands and lips of snow in the cemetery. The late Abram Eads who was a presiding elder in the Methodist church for many years, a graduate of the old Blue Mountain university, was for years my personal friend and one of the stalwart heroic type of Methodist preachers, a scholar and a ripe and good one, one of the men who has left the stamp of genius and scholarship on the present generation. Associated with him was Father Wilbur, another old time hero, and H. K. Hines, both dead, Wilbur since 1888 and Hines since 1907. I like your newspapers and I like your Chautauqua and your city. Enterprise, enterprise everywhere so marked and evident.

Judge J. D. Fenner, Riley Interpreter

"Boise has just closed a very successful Chautauqua and it was supported quite liberally by its business men. They all say it is one of the very best advertisements Boise has had. It has made it the literary talk of the whole country.

"That you have such men as Dr. McMillan and Geo. T. Cochran and those associated with them who are willing to devote their energies to building up such an institution as your Chautauqua is a credit not only to La Grande but to all this part of Oregon. They hustled in and subscribed liberally to make up the deficit and are planning for a big pavilion and grounds next year with the very best taken that can be secured. Your Chautauqua will make of La Grande the mecca for the scholarship of this part of Oregon, affording not only the very best kind of instruction but the very best entertainment as well.

"Yes, I am a good like Emerson in one respect at least. You remember, he said he liked anybody who like Plato; well, I like anybody who likes Riley. I call Riley the Burns of America. You know, I suppose, that he now lies very low from a stroke of paralysis. It is likely he has written his last poem, but he has written some things that will live in American literature. When people fail to be moved by "The Old Swimm'n' Hole" and "Out to Old Aunt Mary's," it will be time to wind up affairs in this country from a literary standpoint and go back to barbarism."

Judge Fenner will give his Riley recital at the Riverside Park Chautauqua this evening. He read before the Boise Chautauqua and has accepted an invitation to tour California with one of the largest literary, musical and entertainment bureaus in the state.

Ex-Governor Hanly, who lectured before the Chautauqua here a short time ago says of Judge Fenner's Riley: "I knew Riley personally and have heard him in the days of his power interpret his own poems. He is of course inimitable but today I heard Judge J. D. Fenner in his recital and he delighted and charmed me. He certainly understands Riley perfectly and his interpretations are simply delightful for their naturalness and simplicity.

Friday of every week. Manager Sherwood is frequently being congratulated on the excellence of his offerings to the people and this latest decision of his to increase the entertainment for the patrons of his house is to be highly commended.

"Sherry" is a showman, knows his business, and the people know him, expect all good things from his house and staff, and they get it. "They say it's good."

The Ironmolders' International union has held no convention for three years.

HE WAS ON THE SQUARE.

One Man Saw Flight and Then Came With His Money.

The aviation committee had an enjoyable transaction last evening after the meet. When Walsh had made good with a splendid flight a man came to the committee and said: "I was one of the people who stayed on the outside but Walsh flew and here is the price." With that he handed over a four bit piece and everyone was happy.
