UNION MARRIAGES CHEAPER THAN BAKERS.

James Nice knows more about the laws governing the issuance of marriage licenses than he did last week. Mr. Nice has lived in Baker county near North Powder for many years. In fact he grew up there but he acquired a farm across the river in Union county, also he acquired the promise of Miss Dalton, near whose parents' farm his was located, to become his better half.

Having spent all his life in Baker county, he naturally came to Baker to get his license. He interested Judge Basche to act as his witness. County Clerk Combs demurred, however, because both applicants were residents of Union county. The fact that the future Mrs. Nice owned property and paid taxes in Baker county did not help any. Study of the new code showed that it was unlawful to issue a license under these circumstances and that a penalty of $500 was attached.

"I want that license but it is hardly worth $500 more in Baker than in Union county, so I guess I will have to go there—I sure am going to get it somewhere," declared the seeker. — Baker Herald.

the next. The movement is all to the east, however, for the general trend of police orders leads in that direction. Every night the La Grande police department rounds up a specimen or two of these undesirables, whose coming is generally expected and watched. Speaking of this connection and corroborating the assertion that a great many hoboes are working eastward, the Pendleton Live Wire says: "Warned of the prospective invasion of Pendleton by a horde of 150 undesirables who were driven out of Pasco early this morning Chief of Police Tom Gurdane and other authorities here are throwing out the dragnet in all the jungles along the river and in the usual loitering places of the 'vags' within the city limits this afternoon."
