A number of pretty birthday cards and other presents made it a time long to be remembered. Grandma Lane and her husband highly appreciate such kindness.

FARM NOTES.

Not Written for Farmers. By H. L. Egan.

It is all right to rhapsodize about the man who whistles while he works but nothing will make a milch cow hold up her morning offering quicker than a loose-tipped hire man who lays his profile against her ribs and whistles in four different keys at the same time while filling a twelve-quart pail with seafoam. When a cow becomes nervous and unstrung over poetry and song, her lactal mechanism is about as useful as sweet milk at an Elks' convention. If we had a hired man who insisted on whistling "Just Before the Battle, Mother," in the ear of a sensitive heifer, which is trying to get rid of her surplus product, we would can him before he infected the entire herd with hysterics.

We have often wondered why the hoot owl is so unpopular a member of society. The voice of the male owl is fully as melodious as that of the average tenor, and his repertoire is just about as extensive. We have seen men try to insert a 44-calibre bullet in the lung of a tuneful owl simply because that bird toes in and inhales angleworms, but these same men will turn around and take a drag from an Egyptian cigarette with a flavor which would turn the stomach of an Angora goat. Life is full of inconsistencies.

The Holstein calf may be all right as an article of virtue but as a bread winner he is a more dismal failure than string beans on the pastry course. The Holstein inherits a love for sleep and ground feed, and it is a toss-up which one he would rather have. You can put a calf of this species in the hammock and rock him to sleep with a burst of song, and unless you cut the rope or ring the dinner bell he will freeze to his humble pallet until his corpuscles coagulate. When it comes to indolence, the offspring of a Holstein heifer makes the Brotherhood of Hobos look better than a small boy with the shingles. More Holstein calves come to a violent death at the hands of red automobiles and irate manure spreaders than all other beasts of the field combined, unless it is the Buff Cochlin rooster, which will stand up in the road and crow in the face of a seven passenger touring car. The only way to get any action out of the Holstein is to saunter up behind him when he is wrapped in thought and jar him out of his trance with a four-tined fork.
