FINAL HEARING IN LOVE CASE

SENSATIONAL DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS AT BAKER AIED.

Yesterday Spent in Going Over Final Arguments in Case. (Baker Herald.)

The final argument in the Love divorce trial opened today and will probably continue the greater part of tomorrow if not longer.

Attorney John L. Rand opened for the plaintiff and ridiculed many of the points brought out by the evidence of the defendant. He particularly scouted the good faith of the argument that Love had been brutal. He referred sarcastically to the exaggerated reports of the child's ill health and characterized Mrs. Love as a four-flusher.

Attorney C. A. Johns opened the argument for the defendant beginning at 11:15 in the forenoon and concluding about 3 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Johns devoted himself to an exposition of the law covering desertion. He cited numerous decisions from many of the leading courts of the land and explained their application to the case in hand. Attorneys who heard this argument say that it was one of the most exhaustive presentations of the law on any point that has ever been made in a Baker court room.

Mr. Johns will be followed by Ivan Hyland, the Seattle attorney for Mrs. Love. Rufus Mallory, the Portland attorney will close the defendant's case.

That Sidney C. Love was not entitled to a divorce because he had "acquiesced" in the alleged desertion was the argument of Mr. Johns in the afternoon. He cited the Christmas letter in which Love had said, "the color was right," in reference to a letter to Love's mother in which his wife had referred to herself as a yellow dog. Also in the letter of January 2, the phrase "Your family motto should be 'take all and give nothing,'" was mentioned. The attorney sought to show that these remarks Love had made impossible a reconciliation unless his wife "had crawled to him on her hands and knees," and thus was shown, according to Mr. Johns' argument, that Love had acquiesced in the separation.

The Store That Satisfies

SESSION MARKED BY PROGRESS

THE COMMISSION INVESTIGATORS HAVE MUCH DATA.

Weaknesses and Features of Many Styles Pointed Out by Letters.

With correspondence and charters and suggestions from a large list of cities and towns using some form of the commission style of government, the citizens' committee appointed by Mayor A. L. Richardson some time ago, held another busy session last night. The committeemen went over a list of letters from towns where the commission form is now in vogue, and in almost every instance, the writers of these letters, answering queries from William Miller, secretary of the committee, pointed out the weaknesses that may exist in the respective commission forms, and very kindly pointed out the features as well. The data on hand also included a considerable variety of charters and commissions, all of which aided the committee in getting along some definite line.

John Collier, now in the east, is making verbal inquiries where the commission is used and J. H. Pearce a member of the local committee, leaves tonight for California points and will investigate various commissions used there.

"All in all we are getting along nicely," said a member of the committee today. "The committee had so many valuable suggestions on hand to profit by that it seems we will soon be able to reach a definite line of procedure."

While nothing has been said, and little expressed by the members of the committee who are still anxious to learn all they can about such methods of city government before expressing themselves outright, it seems that the one-man commission, a manager, is the probable recommendation that will eventually be made by the commission when it reports to the council.

RAMPOLLA FAVORED ONE

simple desire any demand for their good offices in presenting a veto or making it known in the conclave regardless of whatever manner it may have come to their knowledge.

Cardinal Rampolla is without exception at the present time the most notable figure of the sacred college. He is a Sicilian by birth and it was just 68 years ago yesterday that he first saw the light of day. He was educated at the college Capranica and the academy of the Noble Ecclesiastics in Rome, and in 1875 became attached to the nunciature at Madrid.

In 1877 he became secretary of the congregation of Oriental Rites. In 1882 he was created titular archbishop of St. Heracles and sent to Spain as nuncio. He was created and proclaimed cardinal March 14, 1887, taking title from the Church of St. Cecilia, and a few months later was named secretary of state. Since the death of his former chief, Pope Leo XIII, he has lived a very retired life, restricting his activities almost exclusively to his duties as head priest of St. Peter's.

The distinguished family connections of Cardinal Rampolla, his intimate acquaintance with Spanish and English affairs, and his abilities to cope with political statesmen are well known. Also he is quite as famous for his learning as for his ability. He has written the best works extant upon the traditions of the Greek church and upon the infallibility of the pope, and he is the author of a notable volume on the historical accuracy of the story of the Maccabees.

Another advantage possessed by the cardinal as a candidate for the chair of St. Peter is his patrician ancestry, for it is a tradition of the church that the pope should be a man of patrician birth.

Rampolla's views are quite as liberal as those of any of the hierarchy and he has often expressed warm admiration for Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Ireland and other members of the liberal party of the Catholic church in America.

Public Lands Sold.

Uncle Sam had an auction day here this morning and disposed of considerable Oregon land owned by him, the money for which is now in the hands of the receiver of the local land office.

The public sale was conducted by Register Bramwell and brought men here from outlying counties and resulted in many sales. The price quoted is principally $1.25 an acre, the minimum price the land can sell for.

Among the buyers of land were Nancy F. Porter, Long Creek; Allen Porter, Long Creek; Charles Beymer, Monument; Chrislan F. Schoenherr, Ukiah; Chas. A. Coe, Long Creek; Orrin F. Steele, Nolan; Curtiss Jackson, Hamilton; Andrew J. Sullivan, Starkey and Morris M. McAlligop, Hamilton.

Glendale, Salt River valley, is busy with new buildings. Sugar making is well under way.
