

BEATTIE DROPS INSANITY PLEA

COUNSEL DEEMS SUCH DEFENSE UNNECESSARY TO WIN

PAUL BEATTIE'S STORIES IMPEACHED BY WITNESSES

Story of Gun Purchase Set at Naught by Evidence Adduced by Sons of Pawnbroker Where Gun Was Bought Insanity Plea Scheme Dropped as Useless Move by Defense.

Chesterfield, Aug. 31.—Attorney Smith today announced that the defense would not rely on the insanity plea. He can see no reason for doing so, he said.

David Weinstein, son of a pawnbroker, who sold Paul Beattie a shot gun, said he sold Paul the gun on the latter's representation that he wanted to use it as a watchman on a bridge. Paul previously denied making such a statement. Weinstein got tangled on the date the gun was sold on cross-examination.

Paul's Testimony Impeached. Job Weinstein, aged 14, corroborated his brother's story and contradicted Paul's story that the lad had taken the gun to the place when sold.

He ably demonstrated he could not handle the weapon in the manner described, owing to his size.

More Points for Defense.

Ernest Nebitt, night superintendent of the paper mill at the end of Mayor bridge, broke down another portion of Paul Beattie's testimony when he swore he talked to Paul and Paul was carrying a shot gun, something Paul strenuously denied. He will be put on the stand the first thing in the morning in his own defense.
