Cleaning the Mud Away From the Battleship Maine Is a Slow Job

Photos copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

All of the water has been pumped from the inside of the cofferdam inclosing the wreck of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor, but the wreck has not yet been entirely exposed to view, as it is buried in mud about thirty-five feet deep. Removing this mud is a slow process, because it is searched closely for the remains of the men whose bodies were not found at the time the battleship was destroyed. Bones that have been recovered belonged to eighteen or twenty bodies, and more are being found as the mud is removed, which will not be for several weeks. It will not be possible to answer the question as to the original explosion that destroyed the Maine. One of the pictures above shows the encrusted hull of the battleship, while the other shows that portion of the vessel most severely damaged by the explosion that sent her to the bottom.

Olcott Answers Accusers.

Salem, Or., Aug. 30.—Giving Secretary Olcott to understand that he, as state printer, is holding his offices in the state capitol by virtue of legislative will, rather than by courtesy of secretaries of state, State Printer Duniway sent his ultimatum to Olcott today relative to removing the state printing plant and advised him that he would not change its location to any other place in the city.

Several months ago Olcott advised the state printer that he would have to remove the plant by August 31.

"I will start action as soon as the time is up," said the secretary of state today. "W. C. Bristol, of Portland, and Charles L. McNary, of Salem, will assist as counsel in whatever action is taken. I intend to go ahead with my plan to oust the state printing plant."

Plain Answer Made.

In writing to the secretary and giving his reasons for his stand, State Printer Duniway said:

"In reply to your letter of June 8, regarding the space occupied by the state printing plant, wish to state that I have had this matter under careful consideration and find that the secretaries of state have not been furnishing this space through courtesy, but because they were directed to do so by legislative enactment.

"Since the plant has been located in its present quarters all the legislative assemblies have known its location and have considered the advantages to the state worth the space. I have been unable to find that this declaration of legislative will has at any time been rescinded or repealed, and I am therefore advised that the occupancy of the quarters used by me in the transaction of my official duties is expressly warranted by law and that I cannot be ousted from them lawfully without some new legislation.

"I am not willing to remove my plant from its present quarters, and seek a location elsewhere in the city of Salem. This would involve much expense and greatly handicap me in the performance of my official duties.

"If, therefore, you insist upon the removal of my plant from the capitol building, there is a controversy between us with reference to my right to remain and your authority to oust me therefrom.

"I will be glad to co-operate with you in any proper way to secure a decision of this question by the proper tribunal, but I will not move my plant and handicap me in the performance of my public duties until the questions above referred to have been determined against me by the proper tribunal."

The Belles.

Oh, the belles,
Summer belles!
What a multitude of heartaches their gladness compels!
How they giggle, giggle, giggle,
In the sea breeze laden night!
How their victims squirm and wiggle
In an ecstasy of fright!
How they hurt
When they flirt.
When with glee they glow
On the squirming of a fellow when they have him by the throat!

Oh, the belles,
Brazen belles!
How they conjure, scheme and plan
To entrap the summer man.
The ribbon counter gentlemen who masquerade as swells!

Oh, the belles,
Greedy belles!
How they wring, wring, wring,
Soda water, everything,
From the pockets of those "Cash" exclaiming swells!

Oh, the belles,
Foxy belles!
What a wealth of hints they fling
To compel the pleasant ring,
Diamond ring!
Ah, the heart engaging ring
Of the golden wedding bells, bells, bells,
Bells, bells!

Oh, the belles!
