DUNHAM WRIGHT TELLS WHY IT SHOULD BE CHOSEN.

Medical Springs Man Goes Into History in Interesting Letter.

Medical Springs, Ore., Sept. 5 .- To the Editor of the Observer)-In the saue of the Sept. 1st, I see that Dr. Barry invites the readers of the Observer to suggest a name for the range of mountains that shed their water into Catherine creek, the many Eagle streams as well as the Minam, Wallowa, Imnaha and many smaller streams, I feel a deep interest in suggesting a name that I think they should be known by as I have known them well onto the half century mark and have lived beneath their shadows all these universe is the granite, and no more appropriate name could be given those grand old mountains than that o which they are composed.

Let the streams retain the name of he American bird, but the mountains should be known by the name which is as sternal as the rock they are compost of.

Be quiet old granites and heed no complaint.

Your name is remembered by savage and saint.

Mt. Fanny justly bears her name, as one of the Granite peaks for it was in the autumn of 1862 that one J. W. Smith, Mrs. Fanny Pauline, now Mrs. E. P. McDaniels of Portland, Miss Minerva Hendershott, now Mrs. J. B. Eaton of Salem undertook the tiresome joursaid: shee told me Dr. King's New ney to the summit of which is row Life Pills had cured her of obstinate known to the world as Mt. Fanny. They, kidney trouble, and made her feel like with the determination and courage that only pioneers possess, accomplished their undertaking, and with them they had one of those old dashioned Preston & Merrill yeast powder boxes, in which they deposited their names and naming the mountain, left greatly entored the little tin box on the summit of that grand old mountain which has remained there through blast and storm all these years and when that dear old lady visits her old home and the few remaining old time friends that are still lingering on life's side of eternity and she lifts her eyes to look to the summit of that old mountain she can, deep down in her heart, say "My name s written there."

Baker Concern Picks up Covers After Trouble With Ad Men.

Baker, Sept. 4 .- (Special) -- Manager Porter of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company is on the warpath today as the result of a discovery that a couple of solicitors have worked what he calls a game on both the telephone company and the business men who patronized them.

A short time ago a couple of men approahced local business men with a proposition to place ads on a cover for telephone directories. They secured various sums from eight business houses for advertising space on the directory covers.

Mr. Porter states that the telephone company owns the directories and that they are merely loaned to the subscribers and that the company has its own advertisers on the directory and that in order to protect them it will remove the new covers from the directories at once or take away the directories.

IRLS as baseball players are usually considered as jokes, but the femi-nine members of the Belfield Country club, a fashionable Philadelphia organization, are able to put up a game of which they are not ashamed. Every year a contest between the girls and the hops forms a feature of the formal opening of the outdoor season. Last year the won by a score of 9 to 5, and this year the struggle resulted in a tie, each coring thirteen runs during the six innings played. In order to handicap the masculine players they were compelled to wear linen skirts, and they were also compelled to use their left hands in throwing. These two requir certainly were handicaps. The girls also had a man as catcher, it having be found that the pitcher, Miss Coralle Peale, threw balls that no other girl could eatch. This masculine catcher—he is shown sitting down at the right of the lower picture with the other members of the team—was named Percy Osb but when he donned a blond wig and became a girl his name was chang "Polly." The upper picture shows Miss Helen Evans sliding for home, "Polly" trying to tag her out. The game attracted a large crowd and was
