

The Isis THEATRE

"Lost in the Arctic" Sellig
The peculiar native customs of the Arctic Esquimaux have a great deal to do with this story. Their custom condemns an orphan to be set adrift in a canoe to perish. This is a great picture and declared by the reviewers to be one of the season's notable offerings.

"A Tragedy at Sea" Pathe
A wonderful presentation of a deep sea tragedy.

"Capt. Barnacle's Baby" Vitagraph
Capt. Barnacle (our old Vitagraph friend) is a hero. He is a grouch but his heroism is real.

NIGHTY HUNTER A YOUTH.

Fells Huge Cougar With Trusty Bullet—Companion Wounded.

Jay Millering holds a record as a nighty hunter even though he is still young. Millering, who, by the way, is the crack pole vaulter in Oregon high school circles, yesterday killed a huge cougar on Fox hill. The skin, now on exhibit at the Pearce jewelry store, measures over eight feet from tip to tip. A companion cougar was wounded but got away and has probably died from the effects of the wounds though he could not be located. The ferocious animal was wounded less than three miles from La Grande.

the leadership contests. The most bitter fights this year, as is generally the case, are in the democratic ranks. For a leader to lose his district usually means a falling out with Tammany hall and total loss of all political prestige and a few of the old Tammany war horses, if present signs do not fail, will have the hardest fight of their lives to retain their leadership this year.
