SCOLDED BOY LEAVES

Interior.

Takes Dog as Companion.

The boy disappeared Saturday night. He had been mildly reprimanded by his mother Saturday afternoon and he warned her then that she would be sorry for it. That evening or night, he called his dog and made off, for where, no one knows. There is no way of finding out in what direction he has gone or what his ultimate purpose, if he had any, is. Suffice it to say his mother is much worried over his disappearance.

His disappearance has been so complete and so mystifying that Chief of Police Walden is led to believe that his companion "Tex" is with him. This point cannot be determined for it appears that the older boy comes and goes much as the notion strikes him and so far the police have been unable to lay their hands on him. It is believed however, that when Tex is found the boy will not be far off. The older is about 19 years of age.

If this is true it is likely that the youngsters have made off, horse, dog and baggage for Wallowa county, or gone toward either Huntington or Pendleton. Police all along the line are on the alert for the runaway and the careworn mother hopes and expects soon to hear that the police in one of the towns along the road have picked up the little wanderer. As yet no fear of bodily harm befalling the Marshall boy is entertained.

While the boy left Saturday night the facts were not given to the police until Monday.

HALE IS GREAT

Hale, the special attraction at the Arcade theatre, certainly made good last night. The man is remarkable. With perfect ease he seems to handle any question, giving facts, figures, dates, names and places in a way that is truly astonishing. Last night he had over a dozen cases in his audience pertaining to lost and stolen articles, business deals, etc., where the people figuring in the cases acknowledged he was right in every detail. He has a reputation established throughout America as possessing a remarkable power.

His cabinet mystery as a form of entertainment in connection with his other work has everybody talking. Handcuffed, shackled and tied by a committee from the audience, he caused some remarkable things to take place that seemed to border on the superhuman.

His act is certainly not of the ordinary type of entertainment one sees in vaudeville. It stands in a class by itself. Mr. Hale is under special contract with the People's Amusement company and will be at the Arcade theatre all of this week.
