

NIGHT COURSES ATTRACT MANY

COMPETENT CORPS OF INSTRUCTORS IN LOCAL SCHOOL.

La Grande Business College Gets New Members Rapidly.

The night course at the La Grande Business college is proving popular, and several new students were enrolled Saturday. Many of the students who are taking the evening courses in shorthand, typewriting and business law are in business, or are otherwise working during the day earning money with which to get their education. There is an exceptionally bright, energetic group of young people who are taking the commercial law course at night. Tonight the evening class takes up the subject of contracts.

The day class in commercial law is taught by Charles A. Small, a local attorney and a graduate of Harvard law school. This class meets from 9:00 to 9:35 a. m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week. Today this class took up the subject of legal remedies.

The class in English is taught by Miss Fisher, a graduate of Chicago university. The college is exceptionally fortunate in securing the services of Miss Fisher, as she is an instructor of ability, and has taught in the high schools of Spokane, and other large cities and is here in La Grande for her health.

PUBLIC REMEMBERS CHANGE

LITTLE FRICTION WHEN NEW POSTOFFICE ORDER COMES

Less Than a Dozen Call for Their Mail Not Knowing New Rules.

Less than a dozen called for Sunday mail at the rural and city delivery windows yesterday, only to be advised first hand that commencing yesterday no city or rural route mail will be delivered on Sunday. The new order of things went into effect with little friction and within a short time it is apparent that the general public will remember that no Sunday mail is issued. Five people called at the general delivery windows during the 15 minutes commencing at 9 o'clock that the window was open. The postmaster and assistants in general are greatly pleased with the smoothness with which the new order became effective and is understood.

"There could be no better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My children were all sick with the whooping cough. One of them was in bed, had a high fever and was coughing up blood. Our doctor gave them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and the first dose eased them, and three bottles cured them," says Mrs. R. A. Donaldson, of Lexington, Miss. For sale by all dealers. *edw*klv

Cause For Thanks.
The Rev. Moses Jackson was holding services in a small country church and at the conclusion loaned his hat to a member, as was the custom, to pass around for contributions. The brother canvassed the congregation thoroughly, but the hat was returned empty to its owner.

Brother Jackson looked into it, turned it upside down and shook it vigorously. He sniffed audibly.

"Brother," he said, "I sho' is glad dat I got mah hat back again."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Wagner's Nerve.
Wagner, the eminent composer, had the nerves of an acrobat. Once he was climbing a precipitous mountain in company with a young friend. When some distance up and walking along a narrow ledge the companion, who was following, called out that he was growing giddy. Wagner turned around on the ledge of rock, caught his friend and passed him between the rock and himself to the front.

Brain Work.
"Does your husband help you much around the house?" asked the neighbor.

"Well," replied the tired looking woman, "Josiah's work is mostly brain work. He keeps right busy thinkin' up ways for me to economize."—Washington Star.

GREAT NATURAL BRIDGE.

Justice Marshall Called It "God's Greatest Miracle In Stone."

The great Natural bridge, which is one of the natural wonders of the United States, overlooks the James river valley, being on the western slope of the Blue mountains. It is just about the center of the state. It approaches Niagara in grandeur and exceeds it in height and awful mystery. It is a single block of limestone, with many shades of color. The walls are smooth, as if cut with chisels, and there is no sign of displacement.

The visitor follows a tumbling cascade down a deep fissure in the mountain under some of the largest arbutus trees in the world and, turning down a line of steps cut into the precipice, suddenly finds himself by a swift stream in a dark canyon and the great bridge far above him.

Washington when a surveyor for Lord Fairfax visited the Natural bridge and carved his name, where it may still be seen. The original bridge tract was granted by King George III. to Thomas Jefferson in 1774. After he was president Jefferson visited the place, surveyed it and made the map with his own hands. Jefferson spoke of the place as "a famous place that will draw the attention of the world." Chief Justice Marshall wrote of the bridge as "God's greatest miracle in stone." Henry Clay wrote of "the bridge not made with hands that spans a river, carries a highway and makes two mountains one."

The Last Dueling Clergymen.
"When did clergymen cease to fight duels?" is a startling inquiry in London Notes and Queries. It will be news to many of us that they were ever fond of that exhilarating pastime. But, as a matter of fact, the Rev. Mr. Allan fought a duel with Lloyd Delany, Esq., and killed him in Hyde park in 1782. He was convicted of manslaughter and fined 1 shilling plus six months in Newgate.

Not a Joke.
Giles—Take two letters from money and one will be left.
Miles—Is that a joke?
"Yes."
"Well, I know of a fellow who took money from two letters and it was no joke. He got twelve months in jail."

Not the Same.
Tess—He said I looked handsome in that gown, didn't he? Jess—Not exactly. He said that gown looked handsome on you.—Exchange.

Value Altered by Conditions.
Silence may be golden in the case of the burglar, but it is not of any special value to an insurance agent.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A shark is the "man-eater" of life, and Dr. Chamberlain, the ichthyologist, has pointed out in one of his contributions to the literature of his subject that "wounds about fishes generally much less than higher vertebrates. A Greenland shark continues to feed while his head is pierced by a harpoon or by a knife as long as the nervous center is not touched."

A Norwegian antarctic explorer, H. J. Bull, gives a startling word picture of a shark's tenacity of life. This man-eater was caught at the Iceland cod fishery. His liver, heart and internal arrangements were removed so as to put a period to his career, and the thus mutilated body was then cast into the sea. He simply gave a leisurely wag of his tail and swam rapidly out of sight.—Chambers' Journal.

MEN ARE HELPLESS AS CHILDREN.

When Taken Suddenly Ill—Here is a Common-sense Safeguard.

Big, strong man is as a helpless infant when he is suddenly ill. The sturdiest chap in town usually loses his self-control, and is utterly unable to regard his condition with the common sense that characterizes his every-day actions.

For example: He comes home tired, reads a heavy dinner and sits down to read and smoke away a quiet evening.

Suddenly he notices a weight on his stomach; then sharp pains around his heart, and a feeling of suffocation. Thoughts of "heart disease" rush over him, and in his agony he fears the worst.

His trouble was acute indigestion, brought on by overloading his tired stomach.

A couple of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets might have given him relief—might have saved him hours of suffering.

Carry a package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets in your vest pocket or keep them in your room. Take one after each heavy meal, and ward off indigestion.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets relieve stomach troubles by aiding nature to supply those elements, the absence of which in the gastric juices, causes indigestion and dyspepsia. They tend to aid the stomach to digest all kinds of food and to quickly convert it into rich red blood.

Fore Feet of a Horse.

"It's a funny thing," said the old animal trainer, "but you can't train a horse to walk on his fore feet because he ain't built that way. Take the dog or cat animals and they'll not only walk on their fore feet, but they will go up and down stairs with their hind legs in the air. It's a little harder to teach than walking on the hind feet, but it is merely a matter of patience and of knowing how, but get a horse off his hind legs and you have a lame horse. Dozens of trainers have spoiled from one to twenty horses apiece trying for the trick, but the nearest any one ever came to it was an English trainer who had a jackass that could stay up for a little while, but even the jack was strained and soon had to be destroyed. Horses taken into upstairs theaters will go up the steps as agile as cats, but when they come down they have to be backed down. That's one reason why horses used in hill work break down so quickly. It's not the long, hard pull uphill; it's the holding back going down."—New York Sun.

The Garden of Eden.

In some of his lectures Professor Robert W. Rogers of Drew Theological seminary expressed his opinion on the location of the garden of Eden. He thinks that the garden of Eden was somewhere in the region lying between the rivers Tigris and Euphrates. In an address before the Haffen branch of the Y. M. C. A. some years ago he said:

"When the search for the holy grail ceased in the middle ages the human mind took up the problem of the location of the garden of Eden. This has been put in many places—Armenia, Utopia, Atlantis (the prehistoric continent) and equatorial Africa. Christopher Columbus thought that Venezuela was the place, and because there is an Adam's peak on the island of Ceylon others have put the garden there. It has also been found in Palestine and at the north pole."

Immense Cost of Roman Feasts.

The amount of money often expended by the wealthy Romans on their sumptuous meals appears fabulous. Vitellius is said to have spent as much as 404 sesteria (about $4,228 of English money) on his daily supper, and the celebrated feast to which he invited his brother cost no less than $40,350. It consisted of 2,000 different dishes of fish and 7,000 of fowls, with other equally numerous meats. His daily food was of the most rare and exquisite nature. The deserts of Lybia, the shores of Spain, the waters of the Carpathian sea and even the coasts and forests of Britain were diligently searched for dainties to supply his table, and had he reigned long he would, observes Josephus, have exhausted the great opulence of the Roman empire.—London Standard.

Must Have Tired His Jaws.

It might be well for those who adopt the one meal a day system to become chawers at the same time. A chawer, according to dietetic experts, is one who chews all things so long as they have any taste left in them. Gladstone, it is recorded, used to take thirty-two bites to every mouthful of food. This would be considered dangerously rapid eating by the modern school of chawers. "I have tried chewing conscientiously," writes Eustace Miles. "A banana has cost 800 bites, a small mouthful of bread and cheese 240 bites, a greedy mouthful of biscuit (while I was walking on a Yorkshire moor) more than a thousand bites. It still seemed to taste about as much as at first, but I knew that taste by then, so I swallowed."—London Chronicle.
