Sloan P. Shutt has purchased the Joseph Herald, his old paper and from the tone of his first issue it appears that he is thoroughly delighted to be back in the mountain town. He swears that he has traveled all over the west since selling out and no place is there any water like the water from Lake Wallowa. It is strange how when a man gets used to drinking one thing he cannot refrain from it. Shutt is like the leading character in Ople Reed's novel, "The Waters of I Caney," he wandered far and wide but finally returned to quench his thirst at the old drinking spot. We are glad Shutt has returned. He is a good newspaper man and Joseph is a good town, making a successful combination.

It is refreshing to know that La Grande and Baker schools played a football game here in La Grande without wrangling and fighting. It makes Saturday the red letter day for the day. beginning of a new era when Baker will respect La Grande and La Grande will respect Baker. It also happened that the game was a tie leaving either side the enportunity for honestly be-lieving if the snew and ice had not been en the ground the victory would Housekeeper.

She Was Used to Storms. The storm burst forth in all its fury. Great trees were torn up bodily by the roots, houses were unroofed or even wrenched from their foundations, women shricked and rushed with their children to places of fancied safety, while strong men turned pale and vainly attempted to appear unconcerned. But in the midst of all this fury of nature one little woman sat cool. calm and collected. She did not appear to notice that anything out of the ordinary was happening. Now and then she raised her eyes from the book that seemed to absorb ber, glanced around the room and went back to the literary love. Afterward we learned that she was a teacher in a primary school and that she hadn't heard or felt anything she wasn't accustomed to.-Cleveland Plain Dealer.

so the "Men of the Sword." In the early days the Saxons took for themselves such names as "Bloody Ax." "Skull Cleaver," "Death's Head," names which in no way belied their original character. The "berserker rage" of the old Vikings spread death and destruction all around the coasts which they haunted, and by the terror of their name they led the Christians to put into their litany the prayer. Chicago some years ago. "Deliver us, O Lord, from the fury of the Northmen." Very terrible were these old Saxons, and to this day the most dreadful of all the people on the face of the earth, when they are thororoughly roused, are the descendants of the same Men of the Sword.-New York American.

End of Altruism.

Because he was too soft hearted to ask his poverty stricken landlady to buy new rugs for his room the altruistic young man bought several small rugs and spread them over the floor. Immediately after the next sweeping day she presented a bill for the week's expenditures; Items-Room rent. brenkfasts, laundry and beating rugs. 25 cents.

"Hello!" said the altruistic young man. "What does this mean?"

"Just what it says." she returned. "If folks must cover their floor with extra rugs they'll have to pay for beating 'em, that's all. I can't afford to do it for nothing."

And from that moment altruism lost disciple.- New York Times.
