PERSONALS

Dr. Notz is here from Baker today transacting business.

Linn Foster, a sheep man of Baker, is transacting business here today.

County Superintendent of School E. E. Bragg is in Elgin today on business matters.

Chris Johnson the well known North Powder mill man, is down from the summit today looking after business matters.

H. Blew of Baker, George A. McDonald of Tacoma, W. T. Hackett of Elgin, J. L. Jacob of Union and Leonard Brouson of Seath, were some of the Savoy hotel guests over Sunday.

Prof. Churchill of the Baker schools, was one of the interested spectators at the La Grande game on Saturday and was the guest of Prof. and Mrs. Stout while here.

Mayor and Mrs. A. L. Richardson went to Portland yesterday where the mayor will spend a few days before returning to La Grande. Mrs. Richardson is on her way to Southern California to spend the winter for her health.

"Golden Girl" Stranded. Reports have it today that the "Golden Girl" company, which played at the Steward Saturday night, is stranded at Baker.

Pastor Bays Land. Rev. Maynard R. Thompson, the new pastor of the Christian church, today purchased the C. C. Cates 20-acre farm just west of Alceel and in the spring expects to set the entire tract out to winter apples. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson have been looking for an investment for some time and after examining several points in the Willamette valley, other sections of this part of the state, decided that this was a splendid opportunity for investment. Mr. and Mrs. Cates are undecided as just what they will do but will probably move to La Grande. Geo. H. Currey, the land man, made the sale.

A Wonderful Machine. The machine by which railway tickets are printed gives an exhibition of intelligence or what looks very like it. Railway tickets are not, as might be supposed, printed in large sheets and afterward cut up. The cardboard is cut into tickets first and printed one by one afterward. The little blank cards are put in a pile in a kind of perpendicular spout, and the machine slips a bit of metal underneath the bottom of the spout and pushes out the lowest ticket in the pile to be printed and consecutively numbered. It is of no use trying to print a bad ticket. The machine finds out an imperfect blank in an instant and flatly refuses to have anything to do with it. Tear off the corner of one of the bits of card and put it into the spout with the others in order to see what will happen and it refuses to budge again until somebody comes and removes the impostor. Pull out the damaged ticket and the mechanism will set briskly to work again.—Philadelphia Record.

When Women Carved. If Georgia's reign it was the bounden duty of the mistress of a country house to carve for her guests. Etiquette demanded it of her, and no one might relieve her of her arduous task, not even the master. To the latter was only assigned the easy labor of passing the bottle and looking on while each joint was placed in turn before his wife or daughter, as the case might be, and by her rapidly manipulated. Carving became one of the branches of a good feminine education, and there were professional carving masters who taught the young ladies. Lady Mary Wortley Montagu took lessons in the art three times a week and on her father's public days made a practice of having her own dinner an hour or two beforehand. A guest who did not receive his portion from his hostess' own fair hands would have considered himself much aggrieved.—London Spectator.

Strict German Discipline. "German discipline in the army is the strictest of any nation in the world," said a man who has experienced it. "Every German boy must serve a definite period in the army. He can buy his way out in six months if he has money, but the richest must serve that period. The first thing told a recruit when he enters the barracks is that he does not know how to walk. That information startles him, because naturally he believes he had learned to walk years before. A drillmaster gets him in a courtyard, and for a week, often a month, the poor recruit is drilled in walking alone. Then he gets another course, and the longest practice marches of a regiment are almost equal to the stress of actual war. It makes thorough soldiers of the boys."—New York Tribune.

Animals Under Water. The ability of a beaver to remain under water for a long time is not really so tough a problem as it looks. When the lake or pond is frozen over a beaver will come to the under surface of the ice and expel his breath so that it will form a wide, flat bubble. The air, coming in contact with the ice and water, is purified, and the beaver breathes it again. This operation he can repeat several times. The otter and muskrat do the same thing.

A Little Knowledge. Mrs. Wheatpit — Do tell! I didn't know Titian was an artist. Miss Wheatpit — Sh, mamma! Of course he was an artist. Mrs. Wheatpit — Well, now! I thought he got up one of those preparations for the hair!—Harper's Magazine.

Reassuring. Inmate Gentleman (to his gardener)—What do you mean, sir, by telling people in the village that I'm a stingy master? Gardener — No fear o' me a-doin' the likes o' that, guv'nor. I a-lus keeps my thoughts to myself.—Punch.

Forgetful. "Is Bronson as forgetful as ever?" "More so. Why, that fellow has to look himself up in the directory every night before he goes home from business— forgets his address."

Notice. Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the undersigned until five o'clock p. m. November 15th, for the construction of 8 inch sewer line as follows: approximately 426 feet, in section No. 2, of sewer district No. 1, same being in the alley through block 6, Grandy's addition. Also, approximately 3635 feet, along M avenue, from the center of Cedar street, to the alley between Washington and Adams avenue. Same being in section No. 2, of sewer district No. 3, all in the city of La Grande, Oregon. Certified check for $5 per cent of the amount bid must accompany all proposals. The right to reject any and all bids is reserved by the council. By order of the city council, November 8th, 1911. C. M. HUMPHREYS, Recorder of the City of La Grande, Oregon.

A Stolen Kiss. It seems strange that because a man steals a kiss his girl should break the engagement, but that is what a German town clubman is telling his associates.

"Oh, she objected seriously to my stealing a kiss," he said. "Oh, nonsense!" interrupted one of the group. "Nell is too sensible to do a thing like that." "But she did," the other protested. "You see, she caught me stealing it from another girl, and immediately she protested that stealing was a crime of which she certainly did not approve."—Philadelphia Times.

Power of a Picture. We gazed at the famous picture of "The Doctor" in silence that could be felt, and I tell you it fairly made me hold my breath and a lump come in my throat as I looked first at the suffering child and then at the kind doctor, with his grave face, and then at the father and mother in the background, and, as for Smart, I don't mind telling you I saw the water in his eyes, and presently a great big tear rolled down his cheek as he said:

"Isn't that wonderful? I suppose as a tailor I should be looking at the style of the M. D.'s clothes; but, man, I'm human, and when there is a picture that appeals like that to the great heart of humanity, why, I just forget all about my trade and think only of my humanity. Come on," he added. "I can't stay longer to look at that, for it reminds me too much of a little one I lost. Here you are," he said— "here's something more in our line, Dr. Johnson waiting for an audience with Lord Chesterfield. Here's comedy, if you like. And now we may examine the clothes."—London Tailor and Cutter.

A Picture of Ibsen. In Schurmann's "Secrets de Coulissee" is a picture of Ibsen at the summit of his fame. When Ibsen had completed a new play the Copenhagen newspapers announced the event with a great flourish of trumpets, and added: "The master will deposit his manuscript at the National theater at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning." At that hour the road between Theaters house and the theater was lined with people. The great man appeared with his precious roll of paper neatly tied up. As it slipped through into the letter box the public gave a great shout. The philosopher acknowledged the demonstration with a grave bow and retired within doors with the consciousness of having performed a glorious mission. Every one of his ordinary acts in public was accompanied by something of the sort, and even when he sat the curtains of the window were drawn aside so that his features might be visible to his admirers outside.
