ARTIST ARRIVES FOR RECITAL

BEATRICE DIERKE HERE THIS AFTERNOON. Portland Pianiste Comes to Deliver a Splendid Program This Evening.

Beatrice Dierke arrived this morning from Portland and will be heard in a piano recital tonight at the Baptist church. Mrs. Dierke shines brilliantly in the Pacific northwest firmament of musical stars and the treat presented to the music lovers tonight will not be duplicated again soon.

While here today Mrs. Dierke is a guest with Mrs. Erla Carlock, who has taken the burden of preparation for the recital tonight upon her own shoulders and has been freely complimented and praised for her effort.

A glance at the program promptly places Mrs. Dierke in a class by herself. Every number is gleaned from the master composers and will be handled by a master hand.

This is the program of the evening: Carneval Robert Schumann Preambule, Pierrot, Harlequin, Valse noble, Eschins, Coquette, Replique, Papillons, Letters Dantesques, Chiarina, Chopin, Estrella, Reconnoissance, Pantalon et Columbine, Valse Allemande, Paganini, Aveu, Pause, Marche des Davids-bundler contre les Phillistines.

A Legal Quibble. She (making up)—And you will admit you were wrong? He (a young lawyer)—No, but I'll admit that an unintentional error might have unknowingly crept into my assertion.

The Reason. Daughter—Father went off in good humor this morning. Mother—My! That reminds me. I forgot to ask him for any money.—Christian Advocate.

The Eternal Masculine. As soon as a man gets everything he wants he finds that the things he has are not the things he wanted.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Discouraged Sport. This is the sad story of one of the most thoroughbred sports known to the history of hazards. His name was Sullivan, and he had blue eyes and red hair, with a brogue to match his coloring. John Hays Hammond, the mining engineer, met him in prison in South Africa at the time when Hammond and other prominent men were held as captives by the Boers in connection with the Jameson raid. The engineer and the Irishman became well acquainted.

"Probably you wonder why I'm here," said Sullivan one day when the thermometer had gone as high as 115 in the shade. "Well, I'll tell you. I got into a little trouble, and I pleaded guilty to it."

"Five years!" said the judge. "Your honor, I cried out, 'I'll throw heads and tails with you to see whether it shall be ten years or nothing.' "And, would you believe it, Mr. Hammond, that judge got mad and added on the five years anyhow. And now I'm serving that extra five. What's the use of being a sport?"—Popular Magazine.

Strength of a Czar. A story is told in St. Petersburg which illustrates the phenomenal physical strength of the old czar. At a little station not far from the capital the imperial train was delayed for quite a time, and the czar, being hungry, partook of some of the simple food of the buffet. Meanwhile the little daughter of the mayor presented the empress with a bouquet, the flowers of which were hastily gathered from private hothouses in the neighborhood. The stalks being still damp and earthy, the empress visibly hesitated to take the bouquet in her neatly gloved hand. The czar coolly took up one of the heavy pewter plates on the table, and twisting it as if it were paper, made a neat covering for the stalks. There is nothing incredible in the story, since the czar had been known to bend a kitchen poker as an ordinary man would a strip of tin.

Vegetables in Tudors' Time. What did people eat before they had the potato as a staple article of diet? Apparently they had most of the vegetables that we have now. Of Londoners in the time of the Tudors, Sir Walter Besant tells us that they ate lettuce as a separate dish before the meat, used turnip leaves as a salad and roasted the turnip itself in wood ashes. Horseradish and carrots were known to them, and capers were served boiled in oil or vinegar. Cucumbers, radishes, parsnips and cabbages also figured at the Tudor meal table, for which, by the way, they boiled their oysters and spread their beef with honey. It would be fun in these days to eat—or refuse—a Tudor meal.—London Chronicle.

A Whistler Story. When Whistler had not yet reached the height of his fame a millionaire called at his studio and wanted his wife's portrait done. "How much will you charge me, Mr. Whistler," he said, "for a lifesize picture of the madam?" "My price," said Whistler, "will be $2,500." The millionaire took up his hat and stick. "Why," he snorted, turning to go, "you expect to be paid for your work as if you had been dead four or five hundred years!"

Governor Mann denied that Beattie had offered to confession. He said if any reprieve was given, which was improbable, it would be to aid the ministers to save Beattie's soul. Beattie has refused to accept religion.
