blue, is close at hand. The advance guard of visitors hurried hither and thither through Harvard square. The old college buildings grouped about the yard were resplendent with Harvard flags. Across the river, inside the gray walls of the stadium, men were at work rolling the turf and completing other preparation for tomorrow's annual gridiron battle between the Yale and Harvard eleven. A crowd of 40,000 spectators is expected to view the game. Despite the swarm of Yale enthusiasts already in town, all sanguine of victory, the undergraduates of Harvard are still sanguine that their team will win, notwithstanding Yale's strength. Tomorrow's game will be the 33rd in the series between the two great universities. Except in five years the games have been continuous since 1875. In the series Yale has won 22 times and Harvard five and there have been four tie games.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are common symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. It has cured many stubborn cases in this vicinity. Can La Grande residents demand further proof than the following testimonial?

Mrs. A. A. Crouse, Ureka St., Sumpter, Oregon, says, "Two ears ago I first learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and at that time found them very beneficial. I had a dull backache and pain through my left hip and joints were stiff. Dizzy spells annoyed me and the least exertion caused me to become all tired out. The use of two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills did me a world of good and since then, I have been in much better health."

A World Beater.

"Mrs. Brown is a great talker."
 "I'll bet Mrs. Jones can beat her."
 "You lose."
 "Why?"
 "Mrs. Brown talks all the time."
 "I win."
 "How?"
 "Mrs. Jones talks overtime."

Amusing.

"Sam!"
 "What?"
 "Try to be funny."
 "Do you think I can be?"
 "No, you can't be funny, but it is so amusing to watch you try to be."

Part Could Be Spent.
 "Yes, I am doing fairly well," said the actor.
 "What are you getting now?" asked the old friend.
 "Four hundred a week."
 "Not all stage money, I hope."

Might Consider.
 "You don't believe in horse racing?"
 "No; it is demoralizing."
 "You wouldn't bet on a sure thing, then?"
 "How sure is it?"

MURDERER IS BOUND OVER

TAKEN TO JAIL WHEN BONDS ARE FIXED.

Arraigned Before Justice Williams and Placed Under $5,000 Bonds.

John Sahles is in the county jail awaiting the grand jury inquisition on a charge of murdering Fitzgerald, the tramp, Tuesday night. He was arraigned this morning before Justice Williams and waived examination but was bound over to the grand jury on $5,000 bond. In lieu of the bond money he was jailed.

Sahles has a vague notion of having participated in a fight on Tuesday night but cannot remember having been struck by anyone or having taken any part in a fight. He awoke the next morning in a nearby alley and tells a story somewhat disjointed but on the whole corresponding to that related by other witnesses. He is a plain sort of a fellow, not earmarked with the usual tramp insignia and looks his interrogators straight in the eye when talking.

MOORE PARTY RETURNED

MISS LYNE, PRIMA DONNA, TO HAVE DEBUT SOON.

Indianapolis News Publishes Interesting Details of Well Known Folks

Interesting details pertaining to the debut of Miss Felicie Lyne well known to La Granders where she spent one winter season, in the Hammerstein new London theatre, are contained in an interview in the Indianapolis News of November 17. Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Moore, former La Grande practitioners of osteopathy, Miss Lyne, the talented soprano and Jude Snodgrass of La Grande are home from a tour abroad and of their visit at Indianapolis and Miss Lyne's debut, the News says:

Dr. Frederick Moore, of Portland, Oregon, is the guest for a few days of Dr. M. E. Clark. Dr. Moore is on his way home from Europe where he has been studying in various hospitals for several months. He is a graduate of Kirsville, Mo., college and a member of the board of Oregon medical examiners.

Dr. Moore is much interested in the debut of a niece, Miss Felicie Lyne, which is to take place this month in Hammerstein's new London opera house, where she is to appear for the first time in opera in "Rigoletto" with Orville Harrold, the tenor, of Muncie and this city, who made his debut last Monday evening. Dr. Moore visited in London and saw the new opera house, the front of which occupies a whole square, and is considered the most modern of all opera houses. Dr. Moore says it is a very impressive building. He declares that Mr. Hammerstein believes Mr. Harrold to be a second Caruso, and that the famous impresario is pinning his faith for success on Harrold, tenor; Miss Lyne, soprano, both Americans, and on Mme. Cavalleri, soprano and Maurice Renaud, baritone.

Miss Lyne is only 22 years old. She is petite and has a coloratura soprano voice. She studied for four years in Paris with Mme. Marchesi, took some instruction of Jean DeReszke and finished with Daubigne. Mme. Marchesi says that she can trill longer than any living singer with the exception of Melba. Miss Lyne is prepared to sing in 15 operas and is engaged with Mr. Hammerstein in 11 operas this season.

Besides her singing, Miss Lyne is well educated and has a splendid intellectual foundation for her career. She has signed with Hammerstein for five years. Dr. Moore says that the English people are not enthusiastic about the opening of the American opera house in their city, and are rather waiting to see what Mr. Hammerstein will give them before expressing themselves.

TROUBLES OF AMATEURS.

Good Reasons Why the Performance Was Delayed.

"H-H-M, ladies and gentlemen," began the village handy man, advancing to the front of the stage at the conclusion of the first act of the thrilling marine melodrama which was being perpetrated by local talent. "as we were a trifle late in getting started owing to the lamentable error on the part of the boy who grabbed up the wrong valise and instead of bringing over to the op'ry house the wardrobe of our talented young leading lady from the hotel of which her mother is the expert proprietress, somehow or ruther got a bolt of and bring along the gripsack of a gentleman by the name of I-forget-what that sells patent churns or something—and—ah—"

"On account of the delay this caused, which was considerably augmented, as you might say, by the swoon the young lady had here and the fit the gentleman pretty nearly fell into over at the hotel when each discovered at about the same time, though, of course, in different parts of town, that he or she, as the case might be, was attempting to don garments that were never in the livin' world made for him or her, as it were, and—er—ah—"

"Also b'cuz of the trouble we had to induce the orchestra (them gents, permit me to say, are mighty talented and all that, but at the same time awful hostile toward innovations) to crawl under the green cloth which represents the Indian ocean, and by agitating the same act out a typhoon at sea, and likewise the succeeding fact that the constable didn't know the villain with his makeup on, and mistook him for a feller that stole something or ruther about four years ago, and has just finished coming up here into the wings and arresting him and dragging him around a good deal before we could get him separated from him, which delayed the first act somewhat, for there was quite a spell during which the villain was badly needed on the stage and couldn't come, and the actors had to say things that didn't sound sensible while waiting for him—and—er—"

"Well, for these and other reasons, we find that in order to get through with the performance at a reasonable hour it will be necessary for the actors and actresses to skip and run when they ought to walk with dignity, and talk fast when they should be talking slow, which we trust you will pardon under the cir—"

"Aw, that's all right!" interrupted a pessimistic voice from the audience. "But in addition to talking fast, why not let 'em all talk at once? That would shorten it up still more."—Tom P. Morgan in Puck.

Why He Stayed Away.

"It's been four years now," said the deserted woman, "since he left me and his happy home. I remember just as well as yesterday, how he stood at the door, holding it open till six flies got in the house."—Indianapolis Press.

What Hurt Him.

"My dear," said the minister, turning to his wife, "I've just made a horrible discovery. The ten dollar bill I got for marrying that couple this morning is counterfeit."

"That's too bad," the good lady replied, "but never mind. If I'm any judge of looks the young man who gave you the bad bill got the worst of it."

"But what hurts me is that I gave them a one dollar engraved certificate when I might just as well have handed them a printed one that cost only 10 cents."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Safe.

"You'd better fumigate these bills before you go home. They may be covered with microbes," said the drug gist one Saturday evening as he handed a few faded, worn and soiled silver certificates to his clerk.

"No danger from that source," responded the latter. "a microbe could not live on a drug clerk's salary."—Mack's Monthly.
