ever played. Several players were bruised and injured and forced to retire during the game.
 Although fierce line plunges marked the game, punting was much resorted to and both sides saved themselves by kicking the pigskin from danger several times.
 Blaring bands and flaunting banners screened Harvard's great stadium today for the annual football game between Harvard and Yale. The weather was bright. Twenty-eight Boston hotels are filled with people who came to witness the great struggle. The weather was clear and the gridiron dry which helped Yale much. Three hours before the game the stadium began filling with rooters.
Navy Defeats Army.
 Philadelphia, Nov. 25.—That annual society-football event which marks the competition between Annapolis and West Point resulted in the navy upsetting all predictions and winning from the mighty soldiers this afternoon. Score, navy 3, army 0. It was a beautiful game but the soldiers were conceded to be the stronger.

Chicago Defeats Wisconsin.
 Chicago, Nov. 25.—Wisconsin was trounced by Chicago today 5 to 0. The score muddles the championship affairs in the big eight. Wisconsin was confident of victory; her tie score with Minnesota gave her big favoritism; Chicago's defeat of Cornell gave her confidence and showing a wonderful improvement of form over the past few weeks scored a lone touchdown on Wisconsin. The badger rooters were sorely disappointed.

RED CROSS SALE IS COMMENCED

NEIGHBORHOOD CLUB TO WORK WITHOUT COMMISSIN.

Annual Disposal of Seals to Aid Tuberculosis Fund Ordered.
 Red Cross seals campaigns have been inaugurated throughout the state and La Grande has received the fever too. Commencing next Tuesday the Neighborhood club will take up this much-mooted topic and arrange for handling the seals in this city this year. No commission is to be retained anywhere, from the distributors to the clubs disposing of them, hence every cent accruing from the sale of the Christmas package stickers will revert directly to the fund established for the study and prevention of tuberculosis. Everyone is familiar with the seals, their usefulness and the study that they stand for. Writing for the Oregon association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis, Mrs. Saddle Orr Dunbar, of Portland, conveys the plans to Mrs. J. D. Stout, president of the Neighborhood club here. She says in part:
 "The time for the sale of the Red Cross seals is drawing near—in fact, we must begin to make our plans for a most successful sale." This year we have been given the agency for the state of Oregon, outside of Portland. The clubs will not retain a commission as they did last year. You know we have always given the proceeds to the Visiting Nurse association and the money was spent here in Portland. Now we will establish a fund which shall be handled by a board of trustees, and in our own state federation will become an active agent in the fight against the great white plague, and the money can be used in any part of Oregon.
 "At first thought it might appear unfair to not pay the clubs a commission, but I am sure you will see how much more good might be accomplished if the whole fund was collected and managed by one board. According to the formal contracts, which I signed every cent must be spent in the tuberculosis work. It is for that work alone that the seals are published"
